Military Pay Raise Bill Passed by House

Miss Coplon Due to Take Stand Today In Surprise

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Judith Coplon will take the District Court witness stand today to testify against charges she betrayed her country by turning spy, her attorney announced last night.

The word came with unexpected suddenness.

Earlier it had appeared possible Miss Coplon, 28-year-old suspended Justice Department employe, might not testify for weeks.

But the way was cleared yesterday with the results Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer got by bringing two big-name witnesses to the stand.

Ickes and Condon Questioned

Harold Ickes was asked if the Interior Department, when he was its chief, had any relations with the FBI.

Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, was asked about the atom bomb.

"I object—it has nothing to do with the guilt or innocence of this defendant," Chief Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., hammered back repeatedly, and Judge Albert L. Reeves sustained.

Palmer abruptly abandoned plans to bring to the witness box Fredric March, the movie actor, and others mentioned in FBI documents introduced in the trial.

In a dramatic turning point, he asked for night sessions to bring the trial to an end this week.

Only One Witness After Her

Kelley objected, saying he wanted to prepare for his cross-examination of Miss Coplon. One could infer that it might be rigorous indeed from the man who prosecuted Axis Sally.

After Miss Coplon, said Palmer, there will be only one more defense witness.

Miss Coplon, he said, will take the stand in the afternoon and will tell her whole life story.

She is expected to testify that when she was seeing 32-year-old Valentin Gubitchev, the Soviet U. N. engineer, it was not as a spy but as a girl in love or falling in love with a man she did not know already had a wife.

Material for Novel

And that when she copied from secret Government documents it was to gather material for a novel she was doing on the Washington scene.

The Barnard College honor graduate was arrested March 4 with Gubitchev in New York and charged with taking and copying from Government intelligence reports to aid a foreign power, Russia.

On the eve of her appearance as a witness, Miss Coplon last night reiterated her "complete confidence" in her vindication.

"When I take the stand, I'm certain my innocence of the charges against me will be proved," she repeated to reporters when she had made her way through the crowd that remained milling curiously around her in District Court

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

COURT AWARDS CHILD MONEY—Eight-year-old Cherry Lynn Prado's lower right center tooth, knocked out in an auto-school bus collision at 17th st. and Connecticut ave. nw., last January 7, was worth $2000, it was decided in District Court yesterday. Two other permanent teeth were damaged in the accident. The sum was agreed upon by attorneys for the child's father, Capt. Miguel A. Prado, of 6704 Glen Carlin dr., Falls Church, Va., and Francis Littman Seldin, of Peter Pan School, 801 Fern pl. nw., defendant, in a consent judgment before Judge Alexander Holtzoff. Captain Prado, who is attached to the Inter-American Defense Board, was also awarded $1250 for medical expenses and inconvenience

Vote Today On Strike Set By Butchers

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A sixth Washington strike was in the offing today as AFL butchers considered a "final offer" made by five hotel supply houses.

The union met last night to vote either for acceptance or no acceptance and a strike, but put off action for another membership meeting today.

The five concerned make up the hotel supply section of the wholesale food division, Merchant and Manufacturers Association. The firms, which prepare meat for hotel distribution, include National Hotel Supply, District Hotel Supply, Washington Beef and Provision, Auth Brothers and Jepson.

11 Cents More an Hour Asked

Under a contract which expired June 1, the meat cutters—about 100 of them—are getting $1.59 an hour with a guaranteed 40-hour week. The union has asked 11 cents more an hour, plus a 40-hour week Monday to Friday, with double time for Saturday work and time and a half for all work over eight hours in any one day.

The employers made a "final proposal" to the butchers yesterday, but terms of the offer were not disclosed.

The hotel supply firms are engaged also in negotiations with the meat truck drivers, affiliated with the AFL Teamsters. The drivers have been getting $1.05 an hour.

The union first asked 25 cents more an hour pay, then reduced its demand to 10 cents. The companies have offered to pay 6 cents more an hour.

"Open Until Friday"

Meanwhile, at Union Terminal Market, eight wholesale produce and fruit companies made an offer—"open until Friday"—to settle the strike of AFL drivers and AFL warehousemen, both affiliated with the Teamsters Union.

According to Attorney Joseph B. Danzansky, the latest offer would guarantee for a year a minimum wage of $48.80 for a 54-hour week. The strikers want a 48-hour week without a cut in take-home pay.

There was no change in the strike involving 100 bakery drivers and four pie-making concerns over a demand for a raise in pay.

Customers Still Abound, Survey Finds

By The Associated Press

A Federal Reserve Board survey hinted yesterday that people are as willing and able to buy as ever—but now they want to be sure the price is right.

Some real salesmanship, plus good quality, neat styling and lower prices, might straighten out the kink in the Nation's economy, the report said.

Automobiles—Between 3,600,000 and 5,100,000 persons intend to buy cars this year. That is a greater number than in 1948.

Television sets—Twice as many people are in the television market as there were last year.

Furniture, household appliances and the like—production has caught up with the demand. But even here there is only a small decline in demand from 1948.

Homes—More than one million families said they expect to buy new homes—even though there won't be that many built this year.

Survey Through March 5

Said the board, in the cautious language of economists:

"The present situation would appear to highlight the need for more aggressive merchandising programs on the part of many manufacturers, distributors and retailers to tap latent consumer demand."

The board admits there may be a joker in its statistics.

The survey of consumers was through March 5. At that time there were some factory layoffs, though not as numerous then as now.

It may be that some of the people talking new car or new home have since changed their minds. Another check next month will test the accuracy of the survey.

The survey research center of the University of Michigan made the study for the board. And board economists said that, to them, it seemed "awfully optimistic."

But they said the center has been making surveys for three years, and in the past has been quite accurate.

Consumers, by the way, don't expect any great price reductions. Most of them thought the price lowering would be "moderate." Only 5 per cent looked for prices to drop a lot lower this year.

Reuther Sees Truman

Other developments on the economic front:

Walter Reuther, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, saw President Truman. "An extremely satisfactory conference," said Reuther, adding:

"I think the Administration is going to deal realistically and effectively with the unemployment problem, and is not going to take a do-nothing attitude on the false assumption that something automatic will come into play to correct this.

"That was the Hoover GOP policy that brought on 1929."

Reuther did not say what he thought the Administration would do. But he termed unemployment a "seriously growing problem."

Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), majority leader, told the Senate he is "satisfied" the Administration is making plans to meet a possible depression. He said he's certain it has plans for a Federal works program.

But, said Lucas, "I am not one of those preaching depression or serious recession. I think we ought to quit talking about recession or depression."

Waitkus, Shot by Girl Fan, Still in Serious Condition

EDDIE WAITKUS
He's Expected to Recover

Chicago, June 15 (AP).—Eddie Waitkus, star first baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, was shot and seriously wounded early today by a bobby sox baseball fan who had a secret crush on him.

Waitkus, 28, was shot near the heart with a .22-caliber rifle bullet. The girl had lured him to her room in the fashionable Edgewater Beach Hotel.

Illinois Masonic Hospital described his condition as "fair to poor." Waitkus' physician said his condition was "serious" but that the bleeding was under control and he was getting along "as well as can be expected." He said he expected Waitkus to recover unless there were complications.

A priest visited Waitkus' room several times, but hospital attendants said this was not unusual and did not indicate his condition was growing worse.

Ruth Steinhagen, 19, 6-foot, dark-haired typist, gave a lengthy statement in which she related an urge to kill Waitkus "kept occurring to me all the time" for about two years. Friends said she had a crush on Waitkus, although the girl admitted she never had met him. The only times she saw him before was on the baseball field.

She was booked by police on a charge of assault with intent to murder. She will appear in felony court Thursday.

She told police she wanted to Compromise Measure Sent To Senate by Voice Vote

Johnson to Testify At Hearing Today; Rewriting Efforts Defeated on Floor

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The House passed the compromise military pay bill late yesterday after defeating all attempts to rewrite the measure further on the floor.

By a voice vote, the 302-million-dollar a year bill was sent to the Senate, where it was set down for immediate committee consideration.

Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee announced that hearings will begin this morning at 11 a. m. Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson will be the first witness.

During three hours of House debate, sponsors easily beat down efforts of a small group of ex-GIs to change the bill. They urged additional cuts in the increases for top ranking officers and more money for junior officers and enlisted men.

An amendment offered by Representative Sutton (D., Tenn.), young Navy combat veteran, to revamp the pay scales in this way, was rejected by a lop-sided 13 to 108 vote. Sutton, who led the successful fight to recommit the original pay bill last month, didn't have the potent economy bloc with him this time. His amendment, he said, would have cost an additional 150 million dollars a year.

But backers of the bill had more trouble with a drive by the same group of World War II veterans to equalize the flight and submarine pay of officers and enlisted men.

Officer flight pay now is 50 per cent over base pay. The bill would fix new rates ranging from $100 to $210 a month for officers—a sharp cutback for generals and admirals—and $30 to $75 for enlisted men.

Representative Furcolo (D., Mass.) proposed making this a flat $50 a month for top-ranking officers and enlisted men, $100 a month for junior officers and $75 for warrant officers. It was beaten by a tie teller vote, 94 to 94.

The young Army and Navy veterans then came back with variations of the Furcolo amendment, which brought on the most acrimonious debate of the day.

"You seem to think that a general's life is worth more than an enlisted man's life," shouted Sutton at sponsors of the bill.

Representative Johnson (R., Calif.) attacked the proposal as a "dagger square in the heart of the Air Force" and pointed out that it would result in an overall pay cut instead of an increase for many pilots. He said they would stop flying and "paralyze" the Air Force.

"That's not so," interposed Representative Tackett (D., Ark.). "Those fellows like to fly airplanes. I'll quit Congress if you lose one single flier under this."

The proposal was shouted down,

State Secrets Open to Many, Hiss Trial Told

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 15.—Trial attorneys for Alger Hiss today emphasized that dozens of other State Department employes had access to documents which Whittaker Chambers said he received from Hiss in 1938.

This was underscored repeatedly by the defense as the prosecution completed its introduction of some 55 separate exhibits of documents in Chambers' possession, comprising scores of confidential cablegrams and department messages.

Among the exhibits, some of them as long as 22 typewritten pages, were reproductions of two strips of microfilm—part of the mysterious "pumpkin papers" which Chambers once secreted on his Westminster, Md., farm.

Chambers, confessed former courier for a Communist spy ring, charges he received all the documents from Hiss in early 1938 when Hiss was assistant to Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre. Hiss is charged with perjury in denying this before a Federal grand jury, and denying that he saw Chambers after January 1, 1937.

Twenty-seven typewritten exhibits—some with six or more messages to the page — today were compared with decoded State Department original documents as they poured into the record, and were shown to be either verbatim copies or close paraphrases of the originals.

These were added to 20 typewritten and handwritten exhibits introduced yesterday in a similar manner. Copies of the microfilm evidence placed in the record to-

Unit Votes Bill To Streamline U. S. Agencies

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House-Senate conferees yesterday broke a month-long stalemate to approve legislation granting President Truman broad authority to reorganize the Government, with no Federal agency exempt.

The conferees came up with a compromise making all reorganization plans subject to veto by a majority of the full membership of either house.

That means any streamlining bill submitted by the President would become law in 60 days unless 218 members of the House or 49 Senators voted "No."

President Truman had urged that his plans take effect unless stopped by a simple majority of both houses, but was reported "satisfied" with the compromise. He told leaders he has half-a-dozen reorganization plans ready to send to Congress and wants to get them there a full 60 days before adjournment.

In the compromise bill, still subject to final approval by House and Senate, Mr. Truman and the now lapsed Hoover commission won their main fight to remove all "pet agency" exemptions.

The House had voted to give preferred treatment to the military establishment, Federal Reserve Board, Interstate Commerce Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, National Mediation Board, Railroad Retirement Board and Railroad Adjustment Board.

These virtual exemptions were wiped out by the conferees along with the companion House provision for a two-house veto. The Senate had voted no exemptions but insisted that the plans be sub-

'War' Party Finds 1500 to Sq. Yd. in Grasshopper Nest

Sheridan, Wyo., June 15 (AP).—A ground party lining up targets for the Government's grasshopper bombing fleet today reported a nesting place east of the Powder River that had a population of 1500 hoppers to the square yard. Experts were amazed, for in adjacent areas the insects ran only 30 to 200 to the yard.

As poison-laden planes began taking off for war against the hungry pests, the ground party moved into a narrow drainage area 80 miles east of Sheridan. It was several miles long and 400 yards wide.

A low humming noise rose from it. Grasshoppers swarmed up in dense clouds, millions and millions of them.

From one end of the valley to the other, they covered every blade of grass. Big patches already had been denuded. Although still youngsters, they had eaten the grass down to the roots.

Maryland Girl, 10, Stricken by Polio

A 10-year-old Lakeland (Md.) girl was admitted to Freedmen's Hospital here yesterday suffering infantile paralysis. Hospital physicians said she was first stricken last Friday, and the case later diagnosed as poliomyelitis.

This case, reported in Prince Georges County, was the seventh in Greater Washington this year. The District has had 3; Montgomery County, 2, and Alexandria, 1.

Autoist, 108, Did It By Minding Own Business

Nashville, Tenn., June 15 (AP).—James Russell Davis, who listed his age as 108, bought a driver's license here today.

"How come you've lived so long?" a curious clerk asked.

"Tending to my own business," was the reply.

Davis listed his birth date as October 1, 1840.

Group to Set Hearing Date On Home Rule

The House District Committee leadership yesterday moved to start House hearings on home rule legislation after one member flatly predicted little chance for action this session.

Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) announced last night that his Judiciary subcommittee will meet Friday at 11 a. m. to set a definite hearing date on the Senate-passed Kefauver bill and two other pending House home rule measures.

He said the subcommittee members, headed by Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.), would also brief themselves on differences between the three District suffrage bills at the Friday meeting.

Asked which bill he preferred, McMillan replied: "If hearings are held, the right thing probably would be to hold them on the Kefauver measure."

Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.), is sponsoring a House bill identical to the Senate-approved measure.

Earlier yesterday, Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.), a House District Committee member, told a home rule luncheon honoring Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), that he didn't "see much sign of setting hearings" on home rule before the present session closes.

The other two House bills pending before the District Committee are one by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.)—similar to but somewhat more detailed than the Kefauver bill—and one sponsored by Representative Vito Marcantonio (A.L., N. Y.). The

Fleeting Rain Snips Drought, More Likely

Rain, totaling .25 inch, snipped Greater Washington's record spring drought yesterday after 17 rainless days.

A brief shower officially breaking the drought came during the afternoon, and additional rain fell last night.

The Weather Bureau held out optimistic promise for additional rain during the next few days.

The forecast last night called for showers today and tomorrow. And today, according to the forecast, also is expected to be humid and warm.

The weather in Virginia and Maryland today is expected to be generally the same as that for the District, the Weather Bureau said.

The mercury reached a high of 86 at 3:28 p. m. yesterday. The day's low was 68, at 3:40 a. m.

Last night from 6:55 to 7:15, about .24 additional inch of rain was recorded there, to make up the quarter-inch total.

The afternoon shower was the first rainfall recorded by the Weather Bureau since May 28 when the measurement was .15 of an inch.

It was the longest spring drought locally in the 75 years the Weather Bureau has kept records. The previous spring drought record of 16 days was set in 1906.

Maryland and Virginia farms are

Harrisburg, Pa., June 15 (U.P.)—The sudden illness of 33 nurses has forced closing of operating rooms at Polyclinic Hospital for all but emergency cases, officials disclosed today.

The nurses, mostly student trainees, became ill after eating dinner Monday night in the hospital dining room, authorities said. Some collapsed in hallways. No patients became ill, and almost all the nurses have recovered.

Naval Gun Factory To Dismiss 2000 In Next 2 Weeks

Some 2000 employes of the Naval Gun Factory here will receive 30-day discharge notices in the next two weeks.

Rally by Stocks One of Largest During the Year

Leading issues gained a few cents to around $2 a share, and in a few cases more.

Roughly one billion dollars was added to the market value of all stocks listed on the exchange.

Wall Street quarters said the rally resulted as much from a let-up in selling pressure as any other factor. Demand never was aggressive, and the volume of trading failed to reach the one-million share mark.

Some key stocks and their gains included:

U. S. Steel, up 75 cents at $21.37; General Motors, $1.12 at $53.87; Chrysler, $1.37 at $46; U. S. Rubber, $1.75 at $33.25; Sears, Roebuck, 75 cents at $35.25; Boeing Aircraft, $1.25 at $19; American Telephone, 50 cents at $139; Kennecott Copper, $1.12 at $43.50; Dow Chemical, 75 cents at $43.87; du Pont (old), $5.25 at $179; American Woolen, $1.25 at $25; Santa Fe, $1.75 at $82.25; Southern Pacific, $1.62 at $34.75; Standard Oil (N. J.), $1 at $62.87; and Twentieth Century-Fox, 62 cents at $21.62.

Senate Remolding Truman Labor Bill

By The Associated Press

The Senate yesterday added three amendments to President Truman's labor bill and thereby made it look a little more like the Taft-Hartley Act.

Getting down to action at last, the Senators approved all three proposals by voice votes, without any audible "noes."

But despite the amendments, the Administration bill still was far from identical with the Taft-Hartley Act. It did not contain a long array of Taft-Hartley features like the use of injunctions to delay strikes and the bans on closed shop contracts, mass picketing and certain other union activities.

The three amendments, sponsored by a bipartisan group, would do these things:

1. Make it illegal for a union to refuse to bargain in good faith. The Administration bill already contained a requirement that employers must bargain. The amendment had the effect of imposing the same duty on both sides, as in the Taft-Hartley law.

2. Guarantee freedom of speech in labor relations unless the speech in question contains threats or promises of benefit. The amendment is similar to, but not identical with, a Taft-Hartley provision.

3. Require both unions and companies, if they want to take cases before the National Labor Relations Board, to file annual financial reports. The Taft-Hartley law requires only unions to do this.

Consideration of a fourth amendment on non-Communist oaths was deferred until today. It was expected to pass like the others.

After that the Senate may start its big fight over how to deal with "national emergency" strikes.

In that connection, Senator Morse (R., Oreg.) in a two-hour speech yesterday introduced a proposal under which such strikes could be delayed by Government seizure of plants—unless Congress stepped in and said "No."

But under Morse's proposal, even after seizure the only way the Government could get an injunction against the workers would be for Congress to authorize it in a particular case.

Several national emergency proposals now are pending in the Senate, including the continuation of the Taft-Hartley Act's 80-day injunctions.

Morse told the Senate "labor will just go to jail before it accepts a pattern of injunctions to settle disputes."

He said American courts are "not qualified to pass judgment on the social and economic questions of labor relations."

The main business of the Senate yesterday was the series of four amendments to the Administration bill.

Union Accepts Bendix Strike Settlement

Indianapolis, June 15 (AP).—The CIO-United Auto Workers accepted today a proposal by Gov. Henry F. Schricker for an immediate end of the 57-day-old strike at the Bendix Aviation plant in South Bend.

Thomas R. Hutson, Indiana labor commissioner, said Raymond Berndt, director of region 3 of the union, had telephoned him that the union would accept the Governor's proposal.

Later Millard E. Stone, Bendix industrial relations director, conferred with the Governor and Hutson. He came out of the conference room and told newsmen:

'We accept the Governor's recommendation as we understand it." Stone declined to amplify that statement.

The Governor had proposed that the strike "end immediately" and the dispute which led to it be negotiated for another two weeks.

The strike started last April 20 after 47 brakeshoe workers were dismissed on slowdown charges. The union charged a speedup in production was started by Bendix. The company denied this.

Most automobile manufacturers and some aviation concerns have been hit hard by lack of parts supplied by Bendix.

Prince Georges Rezoning Is Disapproved

Rezoning of a 19-acre tract of Sargeant and Chillum rds. in Prince Georges County for apartment use was turned down yesterday by the Prince Georges County commissioners after more than 100 residents of the Queens Chapel area registered oppoistion.

Walter F. Mulligan, president of the Prince Georges County Civic Federation; Donald Bellman, president, and William H. Cusick, vice president, of the Chillum Citizens Association, spokesman for the group, contended more apartments would further crowd the county's schools and that they wanted the area to remain one-family residential in nature.

Commissioner T. Hammond Welsh, sr., disqualified himself from voting because his son, T. Hammond Welsh, jr., represented the apartment developers.

Senate Group To Probe Plan For Coal 'Czar'

By The Associated Press

The plan of some big soft-coal interests to set up a super-duper bargainer to deal with John L. Lewis brought on a congressional investigation yesterday.

The Senate Banking Committee voted unanimously for its small-business group to start a probe Monday.

Senator Robertson (D., Va.), sponsoring the investigation, said its aim is to find out if the plan violates the antitrust laws.

Robertson said small and independent coal operators fear a "czar," as he called it, would lead mine management to "the same type of monopolistic control now exercised, and apparently by authority of law, over the miners."

"Many of the operators do not believe our antitrust laws permit them to go into such an agreement, the end result of which would be to fix prices," he told reporters.

The committee acted in the midst of a week-long strike ordered by Lewis in both soft and hard coal fields to reduce the abundant stocks of already mined coal.

The way the 480,000 miners, members of the United Mine Workers Union which Lewis heads, responded to the walkout order demonstrated that the workers, at least, are rallied behind a single spokesman.

Lewis kept silent about the Senate committee action and the plan to set up a powerful management bargainer as his protagonist.

However, Lewis is reported favoring the coordinator idea.

Lewis' present industry-wide contract expires in two weeks, June 30. He has started separate negotiations with Southern producers and the United States Steel Corp.'s mines. And he has asked for other separate sets of negotiations with Northern and Western soft coal producers and eastern Pennsylvania's anthracite owners.

That was the setting when George Love, president of the big Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., announced the coordinator plan. He said a number of major coal operators in Pennsylvania, northern West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois are considering Harry M. Moses as their joint bargainer against Lewis.

Building Strike Strains Jobless Pay System

The District's unemployment compensation system is threatened with serious dislocation as a result of the lengthening construction industry strike, it was learned yesterday.

The work load of the District Unemployment Compensation Board has doubled at a time when the agency faces a sharp cut in budget and personnel.

The walkout of carpenters and building laborers enters its 16th day today, with no sign of settlement in sight. Each additional day of the strike increases the number of furlough nonstriking workers applying for unemployment compensation payments of $6 to $20 a week.

Long before the strike occurred on June 1, C. A. Wharton, director of the board, pleaded with the Federal Bureau of Employment Security for additional funds with which to operate the agency during the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Available funds limit the personnel of the local board to 185 employes for collecting the special unemployment compensation taxes, for checking against fraud, and for disbursing the compensation payments to jobless workers and the readjustment allowances of $20 a week to veterans.

His staff is so hard pressed, Wharton said, that each interviewer has been averaging 189 personal contacts daily, or less than three minutes per contact.

There's ample money—a reserve of 45 million dollars—to make the unemployment compensation payments, Wharton pointed out, but funds for administering and disbursing the payments run out at the end of the present fiscal year, June 30.

The administrative funds for the local board, and for the unemployment compensation boards of the 48 States, are tied up in Congress. Officials of the local board say they have no way of telling how much they will get out of the total allocation, but they fear it will be less than the $356,000 requested to run the agency from July 1 to December 31.

There were no new developments yesterday in the strike which has paralyzed 100 million dollars' worth of construction in this area. The District Carpenters Council went ahead with plans to pay strike benefits to its jobless members. Council officials assert that no more than 800 of the 3500 active carpenters are presently unemployed despite the strike. Francis J. Kelly, attorney for the contractors, yesterday disputed the figures, however. Kelly said that he made a two-day survey and found only 587 union carpenters at work as of Tuesday evening, with less due to be on the job yesterday.

Yesterday marked the termination date of the 1948 work contract between some 250 laborers belonging to Plasterer Tenders Local No. 571. William S. Burrus, business agent, said yesterday there was no intenttion on the part of the local to strike, but rather to carry on negotiations with the Employing Plasterers Association for a new contract. The tenders get $1.75 an hour.

Clark, Wilson Urge Congress To 'Plug Gaps' in Rights Laws

Attorney General Clark and industrialist Charles E. Wilson teamed up yesterday in a plea to Congress to "plug the gaps" in the civil rights laws and forbid Jim Crow practices in transportation.

They testified to a House Judiciary subcommittee. Each supported strongly a broad bill to put on the law books most of the recommendations of a Civil Rights Committee that Wilson headed.

Clarks said present laws "fall far short" of supplying proper protection of "life, liberty and property." He said a "large number of our people" now "live in fear and distrust."

And he proposed a new law to "remove all doubts" that interstate transportation facilities like trains, buses and airplanes, are "available to all without distinction because of race or color."

Wilson, president of General Electric Co., said civil rights laws have become "increasingly inadequate and archaic" and need a thorough overhauling.

"If we now modernize these statutes," he said, "we can make them effective twentieth century tools for the protection of civil rights."

As to forbidding Jim Crow segregation, Wilson said:

"I strongly recommend that this legislative step be taken. Segregation is one of our Nation's greatest social problems and it will not be solved overnight.

"But it seems particularly appropriate that in the channels of interstate commerce, the control of which has been the express power and responsibility of the Federal Government for more than a century and a half, racial segregation should be outlawed without further delay."

The Civil Rights Committee that Wilson headed was appointed by President Truman in 1946. Later it submitted a long report to him. The President decided its principal recommendations should be carried out and asked Congress to go ahead last year.

The bill on which the hearings began yesterday would increase the penalties for violations of civil rights, provide a bigger enforcement agency in the Justice Department and set up permanent civil rights committees to advise the President and Congress.

One part would forbid the intimidation or coercion of voters in primary and special elections. This already is banned in general elections.

AB&W Bus Strike Date Registered

Bus drivers and maintenance workers of the AB&W Transit Co., which operates between nearby Virginia and Washington, have voted to strike July 21 if their demands for a new work contract are not met by that date.

The strike vote was formal and routine, meeting with the State requirement of 35 days' notice. Under the law of Virginia, the Governor could seize the bus line to prevent a transportation tie-up.

Contract negotiations have been going on for several weeks between the line—Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co.—and the union—Local 1131 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes (AFL).

Under the present contract drivers get from $1.12 an hour beginning wage to $1.35 an hour for journeymen; maintenance workers get from 86 cents an hour for sweepers to $1.45 an hour for mechanics.

The union, which represents some 500 employes, is asking for a starting wage of $1.55 an hour for drivers and $1.65 an hour after the first year, plus a flat 30 cents an hour increase in pay for maintenance workers. The local also is asking for a pension plan to be financed by the company.

A company official said the bus line lost money in both 1947 and 1948, yet gave 10 cents an hour pay raises in both years. In 1949, the spokesman said, the company still will fail to make a "reasonable profit" despite a raise in fare that went into effect last fall.

Gossett Says DP Blood Pollutes U. S.

By The Associated Press

Rep. Ed. Gossett (D., Tex.) charged yesterday that hundreds of potential fifth columnists are being brought into the United States under the displaced persons program.

The Texas congressman has made repeated attacks on the resettlement of war refugees from Europe in the United States.

His sounding board yesterday was a general session of the 23rd annual rural women's short course at the University of Maryland.

Gossett told the 1050 women enrolled in the course that he was a farm boy and had no prejudices against foreign peoples.

"We don't want any immigrants," he said. "In the past, when we had frontiers to conquer, new blood meant strength. But the blood we are offered now means only weakness and pollution.

"By and large, the people in the displaced persons camps in Europe are the refuse of Europe. The camps are filled with bums, criminals, black marketers, subversives, revolutionists and crackpots.

"Some of these camps are little more than training schools for revolutionary activities.

"Doubtless many people have been planted in these camps to infiltrate in this country to serve alien causes. Hundreds of potential fifth columnists have lived in these camps awaiting passage to America."

Representative Gossett was invited to speak because Maryland has taken a leading role in the displaced persons program and a large percentage of the refugee families brought from Europe have been settled on Maryland farms.

Montgomery P-TA Backs Fund Boost

Strong support for higher school appropriations in Montgomery County was given last night by a majority of 150 persons attending a Montgomery County Council budget hearing in Rockville.

Strongest backing came from the County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations with a membership of 14,000.

PT-A leaders gave their wholehearted indorsement to the $3,746,707 request of the County Board of Education for operating funds during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

County Manager I. G. McNayr recommended approval of only $3,352,918 for school operating funds. His amount is $534,516 more than the current appropriation.

"We don't want cheap education," John A. McIntire, president of the P-TA Council, told the county body.

Another PT-A leader, Leslie M. Abbe, said certain funds could be taken from other county activities and turned over to the schools, leaving the total budget figure the same.

Mrs. Georgina Dunn of Takoma Park, representing the Cerebral Palsy Association, pleaded for restoration of $4000 cut by McNayr from a requested $10,000 to be used for a special school for handicapped children. "It is significant that Mr. McNayr has increased the budget request of the animal shelter $6585 to $9771 but has cut by $4000 the item for a school which would benefit handicapped children, many of whom are forced to stay home, lonely and frustrated," she said.

Robert B. Parke, representing the Parents League for Curriculum Improvement, asked that cuts in budget items for text books, instruction materials and library books be restored.

Spokesmen for the Montgomery County Civic Association said their group had indorsed the operating and capital budgets as proposed by McNayr. The budgets total almost $14,500,000.

The hearing was the last of three set by the county council before adopting the 1949-50 budget sometime this month.

Private Guilty In Bolling Fire; Gets 4 Years

Pfc. George F. Falterman, 19, yesterday was sentenced to serve four years in a Federal penitentiary for setting the fire that destroyed Bolling Air Base Chapel, last February 24.

He also was given a dishonorable discharge from the Air Force and ordered to forfeit all pay and allowances.

The airman, a New Yorker, was found guilty of "statutory burning" by a general court-martial after 20 minutes deliberation. The court took another 25 minutes to fix the penalty.

Sentence was imposed by Col. Odea Evans, president of the 7-man general court which had been hearing testimony in the case since Monday.

The court began deliberations at 3:25 p. m. after hearing testimony from Falterman that he had suffered an attack of amnesia during the time the fire was reported.

Earlier the prosecution read a statement signed by Falterman in which he admitted setting the blaze because he had not been allowed to teach Sunday School.

The airman was defended by Capt. William D. Holeman, 30, of 214 Portland st. se., and Lieut. Jesse H. Johnson, 26, of Baltimore. Lieut. William R. Kenney, son of Air Force Gen. George C. Kenney, acted as trial judge advocate (prosecutor).

Maryland Asks Bids On 3 Road Projects

Baltimore, June 15 (AP).—The State Roads Commission advertised for bids today on building of a U. S. 1 bypass through Laurel, a dual highway project on the approaches to Ocean City, and the widening of a road in the southeast outskirts of Washington.

The Laurel bypass is a 1½-mile project beginning north of the town on Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

The Ocean City project runs 4 miles, from the west edge of the resort to State Route No. 452.

The suburban Washington job is a half-mile stretch on Suitland road, State Route No. 218, beginning a mile from the D. C. line and running southeast to State Route No. 458.

VA Psychiatry School Urged

The American Legion's National Medical Advisory Board yesterday proposed that the Veterans Administration sponsor a special school of psychiatry at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

The recommendation was made, it was said, in the face of an ever-increasing shortage of specialists in the mental health field. Mental illnesses account now for some 52,000 of VA's 96,000 hospitalized patients.

The proposed training course would be open to applicants throughout the country, according to tentative plans outlined at the advisory board's meeting here Tuesday. Instruction would be by St. Elizabeths staff members and outstanding men from other psychiatric centers.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths, and Dr. H. D. Shapiro, Legion senior medical consultant, were delegated by fellow board members to confer further in the matter with VA officials.

Full Legion indorsement of the proposal, it was stressed, is contingent on approval by its national rehabilitation commission and national convention.

Virginia C&P Has Third Day

Richmond, Va., June 15 (AP).—The first phase in the effort of Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia to win new rate increases was almost complete today.

Developments during the third day in which the company has presented direct testimony in its petition for rate boosts to add about four million dollars to its gross revenues, included testimony by Harry C. Gretz, assistant comptroller of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the parent of C. & P. of Virginia, and other Bell System companies.

Gretz told the State Corporation Commission that license service contracts between the C. & P. of Virginia, and A. T. & T. over a 10-year period resulted in a loss to the parent company.

From 1939 through 1948, he said, the amounts received by the parent company for research, operational advice and financial advice and assistance averaged $304,700 a year. The expenses averaged $342,438 a year, and capital employed averaged $2,430,856 a year, he said. The average net income to the A. T. & T. resulted in a loss of $15,956, and the net income to average capital employed was minus .66 per cent, he added.

Bricker's Vote May Decide Fate of Gas Bill

By Robert S. Allen

Senator John Bricker (R., Ohio) holds the deciding vote on the bill that is expected to boost the cost of natural gas to consumers by at least 75 million dollars a year.

That's the inside word in the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

A sub-group of the committee has been considering the measure for weeks, but has taken no vote as yet. Author of the bill is Senator Robert Kerr (D., Okla.), wealthy oil man. A companion bill was introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) and Representative John Lyle (D., Tex.).

Like Previous Bills

The measures are practically the same as bills sponsored in the Eightieth Congress by former Senator E. H. Moore and former Representative Ross Rizley, Oklahoma Republicans. In addition to opening the way to an increase in natural gas rates, the legislation would riddle control of the industry by the Federal Power Commission. Two key Supreme Court decisions upholding such regulation would be repealed.

Bricker has not disclosed his position on the Kerr bill. However, he is the author of another measure that would strip the power commission of much of its authority over the natural gas industry and thereby open the way for rate boosts. This bill has received little public notice and it has not been considered by the committee.

Kerr An Old Opponent

Also, at the beginning of this session, Bricker had himself transferred to the Interstate Commerce Committee from the Expenditures Committee. To make this change, he gave up a fourth ranking place to go to the bottom of the GPO list on the Interstate Committee.

Kerr is not a member of this committee. But he has been very active behind the scenes in pushing his bill. This may account for his militant opposition, also sub rosa, against the confirmation of Power Commissioner Leland Olds. The liberal New Yorker was reappointed for a third term by President Truman last week.

Kerr Bill Assailed by Olds

In a recent appearance before the Interstate Subcommittee, Olds assailed the Kerr bill as designed to destroy federal regulation of natural gas and to mulct consumers. He testified that in the past ten years the market for natural gas has more than doubled and that the rate level has in no way hampered the expansion and profits of the industry. The latter are currently at peak heights.

According to reports among Committee members, Olds has little chance of being approved. The five Republican Senators are lined up against him, plus two Democrats. They are Senator Ernest McFarland (Ariz.) and Senator Lyndon Johnson (Tex.) who are said to have been swung against Olds by Kerr.

Sen. Downey Halts Fight Over Straus

By the United Press

Senator Sheridan Downey (D., Calif.) yesterday called off his fight to keep Reclamation Commissioner Michael Straus and Richard Boke, director of the California region, off the Federal payroll.

He settled for a congressional investigation of his charges that Straus and other Reclamation officials "suppressed records, and attempted to spend unduly large sums of money."

Downey told a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee he will not press for action on his proposed amendment to the Interior Department bill which would require Senate confirmation of Straus and his top-level aides.

Soaking Rain Forecast Here

badly in need of a soaking rain which the Weather Bureau believes may be with us today and tomorrow.

There have been no serious crop losses yet in Maryland, but Dr. T. B. Symons, head of the University of Maryland's Extension Service at College Park, said: "We are fast approaching the danger point."

Dr. R. G. Rothgeb of the agronomy department at the University of Maryland said dairy farmers have been hit by loss of pasturage. The drought, he said, has cut back pasture growth from 50 to 75 per cent.

The extended dry spell has been beneficial to the State's hay crop harvest, Dr. Rothgeb said. Early spring wet weather helped growth of hay and the present dry weather is ideal for harvesting.

Dr. Rothgeb said tobacco growers have been hurt by the drought. Normal planting schedules have been upset because young tobacco plants haven't grown fast enough in their seed beds, he said.

Nearly three weeks of dry weather and brisk hot winds have not seriously affected fruit trees in northern Virginia, the Winchester Research Laboratory reported yesterday.

Specialists at the laboratory explained this section of the State had a total rainfall of 7.01 inches during May and that the soil was well supplied with moisture around the roots of the fruit trees.

Because of the drought, watering of lawns and gardens with hoses has been temporarily banned in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties by the Maryland Suburban Sanitary Commission. Falls Church also has such a ban in effect, but it is imposed every summer.

latter bill carries an FEPC provision and other civil rights clauses.

The home rule luncheon, held at the National Press Club auditorium and attended by about 150 individuals and organization representatives, ended on Miller's unhappy note.

Kefauver, who piloted the home rule measure through the Senate, was given a plaque "for his outstanding services toward securing home rule for the citizens of the District of Columbia." The plaque was presented by "the Democratic Central Committee and the citizens of Washington."

Kefauver predicted House passage of the bill and said he hoped the District some day also would win national representation.

James William Bryan made the address of welcome, A. L. Wheeler, chairman of the local party group and clerk of the Senate District Committee, introduced the speakers and guests, and Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) presented the plaque to Kefauver.

Argentina, Britain Held Ignoring U. S.

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

Britain and Argentina appeared yesterday to be cold-shouldering American protests against their new, proposed five-year trade agreement.

The agreement, which State Department officials believe would channel trade between Argentina and Britain and harm United States sales in Argentine markets, still is in process of settlement.

But a British diplomatic informant here said he knew of no intention to delay action on closing the agreement to meet American objections.

Both Lack U. S. Dollars

This coincided with word given out by Undersecretary of State Webb at a news conference yesterday. Webb said that as far as he knew Britain and Argentina would not hold up signing of the agreement, but he hoped that before they signed they would give most careful consideration to American criticisms.

The agreement was just about completed two weeks ago. Among the factors which led up to it are these: 1. Both Britain and Argentina have dollar shortages; (2) Britain traditionally has bought huge quantities of meat from Argentina.

The agreement provides for balancing Argentine exports of meat to Britain against British exports of oil, machinery and other products to Argentina. The trade would be balanced at a level of about $320,000,000 annually.

State Department officials who have been studying such information as they could get on the deal have concluded that in oil and various kinds of machinery Britain would get for five years a virtually exclusive market in Argentina. Thus American sellers would be unable to compete there.

At the British Embassy, a spokesman, Gordon Huson, said no copies of the treaty actually had come here yet and that in his opinion some of the objections were based on "American Misconceptions."

He said that agreement in principle had been reached and he knew of no intention to delay further work toward signing.

3-Hour Grilling

Hoffman Firm Against Further Cuts

An economy-minded Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday grilled ECA Chief Paul Hoffman for three hours on projected further cuts in Marshall Plan funds without budging the stocky administrator.

Hoffman, supported by bales of statistics, warned against three separate proposals to cut back the program all the way from 500 million to one billion dollars.

He urged instead that the Senate vote at least the $3,658,000,000 figure approved by the House for 10½ months.

"That's a cut of 712 million," he said.

When members protested that it wasn't really a cut, since ECA could come back for more after 10½ months, he told the Senators:

"That's an event I would avoid as I'd avoid the worst plague. The last thing I want to do is come back."

Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) suggested Hoffman agree to accept the House figure on a flat 12-month basis "and say you'll stay on and administer it."

Hoffman didn't answer. The other day he was raked over the coals by Appropriations Chairman Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) for implying he would step down if the program was cut below House figures.

Hoffman told newsmen he hadn't changed his mind on that point but didn't want to be accused again of "threatening" the committee.

Hoffman, backed up by Assistant Administrator Richard M. Bissell, jr., replied in detail to the Congressional "Watchdog" Committee plan to reduce shipments of food, raw materials and capital equipment by 740 million dollars.

Hoffman said the proposal is based on "mistaken" assumptions, grows out of "an inadequate understanding of the program, and would have a disastrous effect on the European recovery effort."

Armory Lot Park Plan Put Up Again

A memorial recreation park was proposed yesterday for the four-acre vacant lot behind the Silver Spring Armory, over which there has been considerable controversy.

A committee headed by William F. Carlin, Silver Spring realtor and civic leader, made the suggestion to the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, which owns the lot. The group asked that the recreation park plan for the lot, originated several years ago, be reviewed.

Carlin wrote the MNCPPC that by using public equipment the lot could be improved at minimum expense for recreation purposes.

When the MNCPPC proposed some time ago that the lot be classified commercial in a zoning plan, numerous citizens protested and the planning body withdrew the proposal.

Conferees Vote Streamline Bill

ject to a simple majority veto by either house. Conferees compromised on a single-house veto by a "constitutional majority"—another way of saying a majority of the full membership.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) sought to retain both methods of stopping a merger in the compromise.

Senator John L. McClellan (D., Ark.), chairman of the Senate conferees, said he will ask immediate Senate action on the measure.

The broad-gauge bill even gives the President authority to establish a new executive department in one of his plans, if he deems it necessary. The House had banned this authority, but yielded to the Senate. Mr. Truman is already on record for a new Department of Welfare.

An April, 1953, termination date is placed on the reorganization powers.

House Passes Military Raise

after Representative Kilday (D., Tex.), floor manager of the bill, called on the House to "show some responsibility."

Still another effort to cut back flight pay was beaten a few minutes later, 43 to 123. The House then rejected by voice vote a motion to recommit the bill and passed it. Only 19 members joined Sutton in a futile demand for a roll call.

Representative Carroll (D., Colo.), protested a provision abolishing family allowances, terming it "a breach of contract." The bill continues allowances for dependent wives and children for the duration of current enlistments or until July 1, 1952, whichever is earlier, but cuts out payments for dependent sisters and brothers and only partially dependent parents. While drawing such allowances men would be denied the pay increases under the bill.

Carroll did not press his amendment but said he would try to get members of the Senate to "prevent this injustice."

Edwards' Attorneys To Appeal Conviction

Annapolis, Md., June 15 (AP).—Attorneys for Thomas A. Edwards, convicted of slaying a Glen Burnie couple, today confirmed they would take his case to the Court of Appeals.

The Baltimore Supreme Bench denied Edwards' petition for a new trial last week.

Attorneys William J. McWilliams and Ridgely P. Melvin, jr., said an appeal would be filed after Edwards is sentenced June 27.

Edwards, 24-year-old gardener for a sugar refinery, was convicted of slaying John H. Mahlan and Mary C. Kline last September.

Vishinsky Asks Time to Talk to Moscow On Western Plan for Accord on Germany

By Walter Kerr

Paris, June 15 (NYHT).—The United States, Great Britain and France this afternoon handed the Soviet government a new proposal designed to lead to a modus vivendi in Germany and toward progress on a peace treaty with Austria.

The project was worked out in a morning meeting of the three Western delegations to the Council of Foreign Ministers. It was sent by messenger to Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky, who promptly asked for another 24 hours to communicate with Moscow for new instructions.

The regular afternoon meeting, therefore, was canceled, although the four powers conferred late in the day on the limited problems raised by continuation of the Berlin railroad strike. Nothing was accomplished in this brief discussion, and the four powers will return Thursday to the principal issues still under consideration.

Hope remained that an arrangement could be found in the next 24 hours; it is possible the council may yet end its session before Friday.

Everything, however, depends on the Kremlin. Western observers say there is likelihood of an Austrian treaty in the next few months if the Russians abandon Yugoslav claims to Austrian territory. A modus vivendi for Germany may come if they grant the Western Allies free access to Berlin from the Western zones of occupation.

In these last few days of hard bargaining and secret negotiation there have been many rumors, some true, others false.

It has been reported that Vishinsky has agreed to give up the claims of Yugoslavia. This is incorrect, although he may do so Thursday. It is the one hope of agreement on this issue. It also has been reported that East and West are not far apart on the modus vivendi for Germany and there is strong reason to believe that such is the case.

Today's late conference on Berlin was called rather hastily because the strikers' rejection yesterday of a Western-sponsored compromise was embarrassing to the United States, Great Britain and France and because settlement of the walkout must precede any development of trade between the occupation zones.

Nothing came of it; Vishinsky was inclined to lay the entire blame on the Western powers, though they believed his Government, too, was partly responsible for the tie-up that has prevented rail deliveries to the former German capital for the past 24 days.

Russians Firm

Berlin Strike Plan Offered By Workers

Berlin, June 15 (U.P.).—German railway strikers offered tonight to handle all rail traffic between western Germany and western Berlin in an effort to defeat Russia's semi-blockade of the city.

But Western Allied quarters believed there was virtually no hope that the Russians would accept the offer.

The railway workers were firm in their stand that they would continue their strike against all railway traffic operated by the Russians or the Russian-controlled German railway management.

Heinz Bracht, chairman of the striking non-Communist western trade union, UGO, said the workers were willing to establish emergency freight railway service with the West provided the western Berlin city government gave the necessary orders.

Bracht said the 25-day-old strike, which once again has made Berlin dependent on the Anglo-American airlift for supplies, might be solved by a "trusteeship railway management board" directed by the Western city government.

But Western Allied quarters believed the offer would be rejected by the Russians, who control all railway traffic between western Germany and Berlin because the rail line crosses approximately 110 miles of the Soviet zone.

Western authorities generally believed the next move was up to the Russians or their controlled railway management.

500 Berlin Directives Canceled by Allies

Berlin, June 15 (AP).—The Western allies canceled 500 directives of the past four years in Berlin today to give the city government more self-rule.

The American, British and French commandants wiped off the the book orders once used to rule their sectors. In general the allies retained their powers only on international questions and security.

Civil Servants' Strike for Day Snags France

Paris, June 16 (U.P.).—More than 500,000 French civil servants today crippled the country's administrative life with a 24-hour "warning" strike. They threatened to walk out later for an indefinite time unless the government met their demands for higher pay.

Estimates of the total of strikers ranged up to 700,000. But many of the possibly 300,000 others who reported for work remained idle at their places of employment.

The strike ended at midnight, when the workers began returning to their jobs.

Streets were littered with newspapers and other refuse. Garbage cans overflowed, even in fashionable streets. The nationalized radio was off the air almost completely. Telegraph offices were closed.

Local dial telephone services were maintained, but long-distance calls were restricted. Long-distance airplane flights were canceled. Main postoffices throughout the country were closed, and there were no mail deliveries.

Government departments were open but operations were slowed.

About 65 per cent of schools were closed. At others pupils served in place of striking teachers. Hospitals were able to give only essential treatment to patients and give emergency aid to new cases.

Provincial prefectural (mayoral) offices were mostly closed. The National Library was closed. Park guards were absent. Workers of most of the nationalized tobacco stores joined the strike.

Italian Reds Call Out A Million Farm Hands

Rome, June 15 (AP).—A nationwide strike of more than a million farm hands today added to the difficulties of getting in Italy's wheat harvest.

The Communist-called walkout was for only 24 hours, but it came on top of a four-week farm strike in the rich Po Valley of the north, the environs of Rome and rocky Apulia in the south.

At least five persons have been killed and scores injured in the farm strike in north, central and southern Italy which continued without a settlement in sight.

Peace Talks 'Deadlocked,' Israeli Says

Tel Aviv, Israel, June 15 (AP).—Foreign Minister Moshe Sharrett today told the Knesset (Parliament) peace talks with the Arabs are making no progress and there is no certainty the "storm" will not break out again.

He said, "Our vital interests demand a speedy and all-inclusive peace settlement," but "matters are not progressing at all" in the six-week-old peace negotiations with Syria, Egypt, Trans-Jordan Lebanon in Lausanne, Switzerland, under auspices of the U. N.

Sharett declared, "A complete deadlock has been reached."

British Ship Seized Carrying Contraband

Shanghai, June 15 (U.P.).—A high customs official said today the Chinese Communists seized the 3000-ton British steamer Shengking when they discovered the ship was carrying contraband.

The Shengking, carrying 250 Chinese passengers and seven foreigners, has been tied up in port because of danger from mines in the mouth of the Yangtze, allegedly laid by Nationalist warships.

The customs official said the confiscated goods belonged to both passengers and crew and consisted of 1400 capsules of streptomycin and a small amount of penicillin.

Hitler Yacht Comes to U. S.

New York, June 15 (U.P.).—The Grille, the 476-foot yacht which was used to carry Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun on gay vacations, arrived in New York today with one passenger and four of the original German crewmen who took orders from Der Fuehrer.

The four million dollar yacht, which is more than twice the size of President Truman's pleasure boat, docked after a 15-day voyage from Gilbraltar.

George Arida, the owner, British-born Middle Eastern millionaire, met the Grille, which is German for "whim." He said he had the vessel brought to the United States to spite Hitler, who put the yacht to work during the war as a dispatch center for U-boats.

The four Germans aboard are engineers. Arida hired them because they were the only men who knew how to operate the German-built engines.

One engineer said Hitler spent much time aboard the craft, but made only three short voyages.

"Hitler did not like the sea," he explained, "and Goering got very seasick.

"Hitler was a quiet man until the war. Then he got a bad temper. Sometimes he even got mad at the Germans."

The sole passenger was George Arida, jr., son of the owner. He occupied Eva Braun's pale green suite, which contained a hard, extremely narrow single bed.

Arida declined to tell how much he paid for the yacht, but said he would sell it if he got the right price from a person who could afford to pay the $1000-a-day operating costs.

Canton Awaits Fall of Sian, A Red Base

Canton, China, June 15 (U.P.).—Nationalist troops under Mohammedan Gen. Ma Chi-hun are counterattacking Sian, important Communist base in northwest China, and its capture is imminent, it was reported here today.

The reports said Ma's troops already had reached outskirts of the city after capturing a number of strategic nearby towns.

[In the north, at least three Nationalist planes raided Shanghai, but there were no reports of casualties or damage, the Associated Press reported in a dispatch from that city. The planes dropped bombs in the vicinity of the Kiangnan arsenal and dockyards and came back later to strafe the area, the report said.]

Sian, long an important government military base, became the headquarters of Communist Commander in Chief Chu Teh's Sixth Army after its capture on May 20.

Ma Chi-hun is the son of Ma Pu-fang, Governor of Chinghai Province and one of two famed Mohammedan brothers in northwest China. They have declared they would fight to the death rather than give up their way of life under the Communists.

Other reports from northwest China said infantry and cavalry were driving eastward into Shensi Province, where the old Communist capital of Yenan is located.

Mindszenty Report False, Innitzer Says

Vienna, Austria, June 15 (AP).—Theodore Cardinal Innitzer, archbishop of Vienna, today termed "completely without foundation" reports that Josef Cardinal Mindszenty was scheduled for release from imprisonment in Hungary.

The published reports quoted Catholic sources here as saying the Communist-led Hungarian regime was willing to release Cardinal Mindszenty or permit him to be an exile in the West. The Hungarian Cardinal was sentenced to life imprisonment on charges of treason.

(The United Press quoted a church source as saying Hungarian Communist Chief Matyas Rakosi had told him the Cardinal "is no longer dangerous to us and his release might actually serve as a propaganda asset." The Cardinal would be permitted to seek medical care or exile in the West, according to this version.)

Plans for Speeding A-Bombs Disclosed

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Safeguards against the "deadly" plutonium now being used for the explosive cores of "advanced design" atomic bombs sent the cost of the Hanford (Wash.) AEC plant skyrocketing, Congress was told yesterday.

AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal told the Joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee yesterday that the Hanford plant will start producing the new bomb June 27.

The effectiveness of the new bomb, he said, was proved a year ago at the highly secret Eniwetok tests. Now the commission will be able to make the whole explosive core at Hanford for the first time and add quickly to its stockpile of the dread weapons.

Answers Hickenlooper

The plant has been producing the plutonium for some time but has not previously made complete cores.

Lilienthal's disclosure was made in answer to charges by Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) that the commission had failed to heed "the danger signals" it its own highly secret report criticizing the leaping costs.

Senator Hickenlooper yesterday cited a secret report criticizing the Atomic Energy Commission for failing to heed "danger signals" in the cost of the Hanford, Wash., plant.

Hammering away at his charges that the Nation's atomic program suffered "incredible mismanagement" under Lilienthal, Hickenlooper told a Senate-House Investigating Committee:

1. The AEC didn't even know that the estimated cost of the Hanford plant had soared from six million dollars to 25 million dollars until a commission member made a routine trip there early in 1947. It is being constructed by General Electric Corp. under a "cost plus $1 profit" contract.

2. The AEC's own review board, in a secret 43-page report, found that a "lack of planning and mistakes" boosted the cost of construction.

Hickenlooper quoted the report as saying the commission should have seen "danger signals" in GE's constantly rising cost estimates and "it does not appear" that any AEC representative reviewed the estimates.

"There was no clear understanding in General Electric or the Atomic Energy Commission as to whose responsibility it was to handle cost reports," the review board said.

H. A. Winnie, vice president of GE engineering at Schenectady, N. Y., told the committee today that plutonium is "one of the most deadly poisons known to man."

Considered Safe Margin

The GE official testified that the Hanford plant was constructed so as to permit only one particle of plutonium to 100 trillion parts of air.

"This is the amount considered today by the best authorities as a safe margin," he said.

Winnie declared that if the original specifications had been carried out—allowing one particle of plutoniun to 2½ trillion parts of air—it would probably have been necessary to "rebuild the whole plant" at a cost much higher than 25 million dollars.

The GE executive also disclosed that products of the Hanford plant can be used in power piles to produce electric power.

Oak Ridge Case Cited

Chairman McMahon (D., Conn.) commented that Hickenlooper was not making any charge of "dishonesty or malfeasance" against GE. McMahon recalled that during the war, atomic construction costs were sometimes "excessive," and he recounted this incident:

"There was a diffusion plant built at Oak Ridge, Tenn., during the war that cost 100 million dollars. It ran for almost a week and then we tore it down."

Winnie said GE is "guaranteed against loss but also guaranteed against profit" in its cost-plus-$1 contract with the Government.

He said GE went ahead with the 25 million dollar facility without any "written official approval" from the AEC for exceeding a mid-1948 estimate of $8,230,000.

Monthly Cost Reports Given

"The increased cost didn't come to the attention of top operating people of GE at Hanford until the fall of 1948," Winnie said. "Perhaps you can say it shouldn't happen, but it did happen."

AEC officials, he said, were given monthly cost reports.

The official AEC statement said, in part:

"The overriding consideration was earliest possibly completion of this vital installation (at Hanford) because of its relation to the results of the 1948 Eniwetok tests."

Results of the tests have never been disclosed.

Hickenlooper rowed with Lilienthal over the AEC's contention. The Senator said the decision to build the Hanford plant was made in 1946 at a time when the Eniwetok tests were "only a glint in a scientist's eye."

Had to Decide Earlier

Coldly, Lilienthal retorted:

"I hate to keep on pulling rugs from under the Senator. But the commission had to decide even before the (Eniwetok) tests were made to go ahead with the plant.

"It may seem to the Senator or any other layman," he continued, "that one would wait for the results before going into construction. But this project had to be under way and pressed forward, long before the tests were held."

Hickenlooper told the committee that the record of the Hanford plant has been studded with "changing personnel and shifting responsibility."

He quoted the AEC review board as saying that a ventilating system was ready for installation in one of the Hanford buildings but would not fit. So, the report said, GE built a new building to fit it.

65 Major Contracts There

Winnie told the committee his company has 65 major construction projects at Hanford, all now completed or nearing completion.

He said the initial estimated cost was 230 million dollars—including the so-called "capstone" facility—and it is now estimated the total cost will be $237,162,000 or 3 per cent higher.

Winnie said the 234-5 "capstone" plant ran about 18 million dollars higher than originally estimated. Otherwise, he said, GE would have completed the whole project for eight or nine million dollars less than the original estimates.

Hickenlooper made it clear to newsmen that he was not singling out GE for criticism on the rising costs, but rather was directing his attack against what he termed the AEC's "irresponsibility" in watching costs.

But Lilienthal, warmly praising GE for "a fine piece of work," told the committee he didn't believe it would be right to "pile another set of managers" on top of GE's own supervisors at Hanford.

"Checkers Checking Checkers"

"Checkers checking checkers is just the kind of thing we are trying to avoid," Lilienthal said.

Then, referring to part Government-part private control of railroads, he said:

"What has happened to the railroads is an example of what not to do. They are regulated in such detail that there is a second set of managers.

"That may be all right for the railroads, but we want to avoid it here."

As the hearing recessed until tomorrow, Hickenlooper indicated he has completed gathering data to press his accusations against Lilienthal. He said his office on Capitol Hill is now under 24-hour armed guard to protect the secret data.

Communists Oust Ex-Minister in Hungary

Budapest, Hungary, June 15 (AP). — The Hungarian Workers (Communist) Party today kicked out Laszlo Rajk, who rose from schoolteacher to Foreign Minister, and demanded the crushing of "imperialist" agents with an iron fist.

An official party bulletin said Tibor Szoenyi, another leading Hungarian Communist, was ousted along with Rajk. They were called "spies of foreign imperialist powers and Trotsky agents."

The announcement partly dispelled the cloud of secrecy which had hung over the Rajk case. He recently disappeared, without explanation, from his post of Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Rajk, listed as an extreme left-wing Communist, also was secretary of the People's Front of Independence—the Communist-controlled coalition of political parties that rules Hungary.

Szoenyi was the leader of the section of the party which supervised all rank and file party members.

U. N. Atom Unit Takes Recess

Lake Success, N. Y., June 15 (U.P.).—The United Nations Atomic Energy Working Committee, today killed a Soviet plan to destroy all atomic weapons immediately and then voted to suspend any further discussions until the Big Five powers and Canada find a basis for agreement on a world nuclear control plan.

The 11-nation committee, in effect, voted itself out of business indefinitely on a resolution introduced by Argentina and Cuba declaring that further study of atomic control plans "is not useful" until the six nations find themselves able to agree on the main principles for a world plan to regulate the atom and its consequences.

Before voting to forego further discussions, the committee, on a motion by China, decided to report to the Atomic Energy Commission and through it to the Security Council that "no useful purpose" would be served by continuing discussions on the control plan introduced by Russia.

That plan called for immediate destruction and outlawing of all atomic weapons and subsequent establishment of international control over all nuclear development.

State Secrets Available to Dozens of Persons, Hiss' Lawyers Say day comprised eight documents, consisting of 56 pages of one-time state secrets.

Almost all the documents disclosed in court today had previously been made public by the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

They dealt with a broad variety of subjects ranging from over-optimistic and unfullfilled hopes that Hitler would not send his troops into Austria in 1938, to reports on Japanese casualties in that nation's war with China.

When introduction of the documents was completed late this afternoon, with the originals identified by Walter H. Anderson, chief of the State Department's record branch, Anderson was closely cross examined by Defense Attorney Edward C. McLean.

Under questioning, Anderson conceded that as many as 40 or 50 copies of each incoming message were prepared, and that an average of 15 of these were distributed in the department with the unused remainder eventually destroyed.

Checks Distribution List

Checking a typical distribution list, office by office, McLean brought out that an average 1938 message would go to offices where there were as many as a total of 237 employes, including officials, stenographers, messengers, etc.

He then attempted to get some estimate as to how many people in these offices might have access to these documents, but Anderson said he could not answer that.

Eunice A. Lincoln, who followed Anderson on the witness stand, testified that during 1937 and 1938 she was employed as private secretary to Sayre, and that Hiss occupied an adjoining office, in the old State Department Building next to the White House.

Shown the first of four handwritten documents introduced in evidence and asked if it was in Hiss' handwriting, she said, "I think it is Mr. Hiss' handwriting."

She similarly identified the other three documents. Hiss has previously admitted that at least three of the memoranda are in his handwriting.

A Peek Into Defense Strategy

The questioning of Anderson and Miss Lincoln served as a peek through the veil of secrecy which has surrounded the defense strategy for providing an answer to the key question in the case:

What explanation can the defense give to the fact that documents—which Hiss admits passed across his desk—are in Chambers' possession?

So far in the trial, now in its third week, there has been no direct contention by the defense that someone else may have given the documents to Chambers. But this has previously been alluded to by obvious innuendo, and today these "innuendoes" were liberally sprinkled through cross-examination conducted by the defense.

Chambers has testified that he received Government papers from at least five sources, and turned them over to a Russian espionage agent, retaining the alleged Hiss papers when he (Chambers) abandoned the Communist Party.

Asked If They Knew Wadleigh

Both Anderson and Miss Lincoln were asked today if they knew Henry Julian Wadleigh—named by Chambers as one of his "sources." Wadleigh, a former economist in the Department's trade agreements division, refused to reply to Chambers' charges before the House committee, on constitutional grounds.

Anderson, in response to questions by the defense, said he did not know Wadleigh. When Miss Lincoln took the stand, Chief Prosecutor Thomas F. Murphy was the first to ask her about Wadleigh, whom she said occasionally came to Sayre's office.

She pointed out that the division in which Wadleigh worked came under the general supervision of Sayre.

"Did Mr. Wadleigh ever come into your office to take any files out?" asked Murphy.

"I don't recall," she replied.

Would Have Gone to Sayre

She said, however, that if Wadleigh had asked for office papers, she would not have given them to him without Sayre's permission.

Wadleigh, it was said here, was in the Trade Agreements Division during January and February, 1938, but left for Turkey on March 8, 1938, to negotiate a trade agreement.

Miss Lincoln, a middle-aged woman who put on pince-nez glasses when she was given documents to inspect, testified that she has been employed at the State Department since 1918. She lives at 1028 Connecticut ave. nw.

Under questioning by Murphy, she gave a detailed description of the physical arrangement of the offices which Sayre and Hiss occupied in 1938. Both men, she said, frequently took work home with them.

During office hours, she testified, "Mr. Hiss' door was always open. . . . Mr. Sayre's door was always closed, except when he was out of the room . . ."

McLean, associate of chief defense counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker, showed in his cross-examination of Miss Lincoln that he had made a close study of the offices.

Hawkins, Darlington Mentioned

He asked her if Sayre ever used one door to his office which opened on the diplomatic reception room, where Secretary of State Cordell Hull held press conferences during that period.

Miss Lincoln said he used that exit occasionally.

In identifying the documents which she said appeared to be in Hiss' handwriting, Miss Lincoln said "the tops have been cut off" two of them. She said they were sheets from a memo pad which had the heading, "Department of State, office of the assistant secretary."

Hiss Greets Witness

At the close of each day's work, usually about 7 p. m., Miss Lincoln said, she gathered up documents left on their desks by Hiss and Sayre, and put them in the office safe.

She said the reason she knew the men took work home was that frequently she found documents on the desk in the morning which had not been there when she closed the office the night before.

Because of the location of her desk, between the offices of Hiss and Sayre, she said, no one could enter the front of the offices without her observation.

As she left the stand, Hiss, who was seated beside his wife, Priscilla, stood up to greet Miss Lincoln warmly, and they shook hands.

While Anderson was on the stand, Murphy, as he did yesterday, read from comparable portions of the documents Chambers had in his possession and State Department originals.

The jurors kept pace with oversized photograph enlargements, mounted on a stand near the bench of Judge Samuel H. Kaufman, while the typed documents were read.

After each reading, Anderson called off the offices which received copies of the documents.

This showed that all but four of the scores of documents contained in the 55 exhibits were sent to Sayre's office. The distribution record was not available for a fifth document.

The fifth document concerned a report that Italy was giving aviation aid to Japan; a message from Gen. Joseph Stilwell in the Far East; a message concerning Japanese shipments of gold, and a cable sent to London by Hull.

The distribution list showed that parts of four of the exhibits, involving six documents, were sent to the Trade Agreements Division.

One of these concerned a trade talk among Hull, Vladimir Hruban, Czechoslovakian minister, and Sayre. Another involved a long "German aide memoir" on international trade.

McLean selected one of the other documents as a representative paper to trace its distribution.

This was a report from the American representative in Vienna, dated February 16, 1938, quoting Austrian foreign minister Schmidt to the effect that he did not believe that German troop maneuvers on the Austrian border could be construed as "a military demonstration against Austria."

The following month, Hitler's troops occupied Austria.)

"Now," McLean asked Anderson, "security regulations weren't nearly so strict (in the department) in 1938 as they became during the war, were they?"

"Well, that's a matter of opinion," Anderson countered, contending that security arrangements were always very strict in the department's code rooms.

30 Employed in Code Room

Under McLean's questioning, Anderson estimated that there were 30 to 35 persons employed in the code room, wire room, file room and typing room of the department at that time.

As 15 copies of the Vienna cablegram were distributed to named departments, McLean showed, they were sent to 10 departments containing a total of about 207 employes.

These included the Secretary's office; Undersecretary; the offices of three Assistant Secretaries (including Sayre); special assistant; legal adviser; European, Far Eastern, Near Eastern and American republics divisions; chief clerk, and the division of current information (press relations).

Can't Estimate Number

Anderson said he could not estimate how many persons in each office might have seen the document. "Aren't there as many as four or five in each office who would initial it?" McLean pressed.

Anderson reiterated that he did not know.

Many of the documents introduced today had been marked "confidential," "strictly confidential," or "strictly confidential for the Secretary."

Among the papers in evidence was a message sent by Secretary Hull, on March 15, 1938, telling the American diplomatic representative in Austria to avoid any action which would indicate "that your Government is involving itself to any extent in European problems of a political nature."

"A. H." on Two Papers

Another, from Buenos Aires, dated March 26, reported that "Germany is secretly purchasing large stocks of cereals and linseed oil in Argentina presumably for military services."

"Military services" was changed in the original to "war purposes." In the Chambers' document, "military services" was replaced by the words "large fees," for some unexplained reason.

In a dispatch from The Hague, dated March 16, 1938, it was reported that "a secret understanding has existed since 1934 between the Netherlands and the British Air Forces.

Yesterday, it was shown that two of the documents bore the initials "A. H.," and another document similarly initialed was introduced today.

The trial resumes tomorrow, and Murphy said he has about five more prosecution witnesses to call, including handwriting and typewriter experts to identify the documents.

Jewish Appeal Drive End This Month Sought

Every effort will be made to conclude the United Jewish Appeal drive in Washington by the end of June, General Chairman Joseph Cherner announced yesterday. He said current collections and pledges are approximately $1,700,000. The area quota is $2,500,000.

Petitions Assure Vote on Ober Law

Annapolis, Md., June 15 (AP). Enough foes of Maryland's new anti-Red act were registered today to force the law to a referendum next year.

The courts have yet to answer a claim that enforcement of the act must be withdrawn pending the people's vote.

Kay Lutz, executive secretary of the Citizens Committee against the Ober law, delivered referendum petitions purportedly bearing 4488 names to the Secretary of State's office.

Added to those previously filed, they raised to 12,949 the number the committee declares have signed petitions to demand a referendum at the next general election, November, 1950.

The committee reported a total of 7006 signatures from Baltimore City and 5943 from the counties.

To force a referendum, the Constitution requires that petitions bear at least 10,000 names, at least half of which must be of county residents, all filed by June 30.

As finally enacted by the 1949 General Assembly, the anti-subversive law became effective the moment it was signed by Governor Lane. Thus it is now State law, but both the citizens' committee and the Communist Party of Maryland have asked a Baltimore court to rule it unconstitutional.

They also sought to make it inoperative at least until the referendum.

The case was argued Monday, but Judge Joseph Sherbow indicated he would not rule immediately.

Ex-FBI Man Says

Chicago Seen U. S. Capital Under Reds

Blayney J. Barton, former FBI agent, told the Washington Rotary Club yesterday that a feature of the Communists' plan for revolution in America calls for moving the Nation's Capital away from the District.

Barton, now director of industrial and public relations for Winthrop-Stearns, Inc., in Rensselaer, N. Y., quoted Communist leader William Z. Foster as writing in 1932 that a national Soviet government for the United States would have its capital in Chicago or some other industrial center. He spoke to some 225 members at lunch in the Mayflower.

He said the problem of Communism was one to be dealt with, not by name calling, but by knowing the facts. He urged aid and assistance to the FBI, which he described as "one of the last organizations between us and anarchy."

Barton declared that it had long been one of the fundamental concepts of Communism to seize control of the American Government, and to do so by force, violence and bloodshed, if necessary.

He said Communist leaders have told their followers in secret that if war comes between the United States and Russia, the Communist Party here will be with Russia.

He said it was "most disheartening" that President Truman had labeled as a "red herring" Congressional effort to bring out the facts about Communism.

Two new members were introduced at the Rotary meeting. They are Judge Benjamin H. Littleton, of the U. S. Court of Claims, and William A. Xanten, superintendent of the District division of sanitation. Dr. A. C. Christie, former club president, was chairman.

Ickes on Way To Coplon Trial

Associated Press Photos
HAROLD L. ICKES, former Secretary of the Interior, also called to testify for the defense in the Coplon trial, arrives at the Courthouse carrying a copy of The Washington Post

Miss Coplon To Testify

after the trial had recessed yesterday.

The 5-foot, 100-pound brunette, who is not only defendant but fills in now as her lawyer's secretary, then made her way to a typewriter to prepare subpenas for the FBI's confidential reports on herself and Gubitchev.

The Government is expected to resist production of the reports in open court, as it yesterday opposed baring to the record a "top secret" report on Communist intelligence activities in this country.

Kelley brought the report to court yesterday in a sealed envelope after Palmer had issued a subpena for it but Judge Reeves again turned down the defense demand the document be placed in evidence. It was then taken out of the courtroom, sealed as it had come, and returned to a safe in the criminal division of the Department of Justice.

Opposed by Prosecution

The prosecution yesterday made a fight to keep Ickes, Condon and his wife, Mrs. Emilie Condon, off the witness stand altogether. Palmer had called them because Ickes and Mrs. Condon's names cropped up in secret FBI documents introduced at the trial.

Kelley said Palmer was trying to make a 'mockery" of the trial by calling in names mentioned in the reports—they bear no relevancy to the Coplon case, the prosecutor said.

Palmer whirled in his tracks. "Kelley and Whearty the other prosecutor have been antagonists who desire to win this case at any cost," he said. "Vengeance is mine! saith the Lord—not the Lord Mr. Whearty and the Lord Mr. Kelley."

Gets Nowhere With Questions

The defense attorney did get Ickes and the Condons on the stand but he got nowhere in his questions.

When Palmer asked Ickes if the FBI ever made any reports to his office when he was Secretary of the Interior, Kelley objected. A few more questions and objections which Judge Reeves sustained, and Ickes was off the stand—all in a few minutes.

The defense attorney had no better luck with Condon. Questions like "Does a high class resistor have anything to do with the atom bomb?" were not relevant, Judge Reeves said.

Objection Sustained

Mrs. Condon, wearing a white hat and brown dress, was next on the witness stand. She smiled quietly at her husband, who was now a spectator.

Palmer asked her "Are you or were you ever a Communist?" and the prosecution got its objection sustained. So it went down the line of questions, and again in a few minutes, Mrs. Condon was stepping out of the witness box.

Palmer yesterday called both prosecution lawyers to the stand as defense witnesses: Kelley and Raymond P. Whearty. It was indeed an extraordinary courtroom situation.

Kelley's voice resounded through the courtroom as he replied to Palmer's questions as to whether he thought Miss Coplon guilty of espionage when he undertook the case:

"I would never prosecute a case if I did not believe in the guilt of the person charged. I believed her guilty. I was also interested in seeing that she got a fair trial within the laws of the United States before a jury of her peers."

Whearty was for awhile Miss Coplon's boss in the Foreign Agents Registration Section of the Department of Justice and Palmer will continue with his examination of him today.

Testimony yesterday from another witness, Howard B. Fletcher, FBI Inspector, brought out that a "confidential informant" first brought the Coplon case to the attention of the FBI.

Palmer tried vainly to find out from Fletcher the name of the informant. The prosecution objected to any questions about the informant and Judge Reeves sustained it.

Lawyers Ask Mass Picketing Be Outlawed at U. S. Trials

Congress was asked yesterday to outlaw mass picketing or parading at Federal courts trials.

Members of the American Bar Association made the proposal as an outgrowth of picketing at the Communist conspiracy trial in New York and at Communist trials in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Spokesmen for the bar association testified before a joint session of the House and Senate Judiciary Committees.

They indorsed bills that would provide a penalty of $5000 and one year in prison for picketing a United States court. The residence of a judge, juror or witness or court official. Intent to interfere with, obstruct or impede the administration of justice would have to be proved.

Charles S. Rhyne, Washington, head of the bar association committee, said the practice of picketing courts has been employed "solely in connection with proceedings involving alleged Communist Party members or sympathizers."

He called attention to newspaper accounts of picketing at the New York Communist conspiracy trial and said:

"Similar occurrences took place at the Federal District Court in Los Angeles last winter

Report Hoover May Quit FBI 'Ridiculous', Clark Says

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Attorney General Clark yesterday branded as "ridiculous" published reports that FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover had offered to resign.

The report, published in a Washington newspaper, laid Hoover's rumored action to difference over policy, especially with respect to the current trial of Judith Coplon. As a result of information in confidential FBI files that the Department of Justice made public by court order, Hoover was taken to task by Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards.

Asked directly yesterday if Hoover "has resigned, offered to resign, or indicated he might resign," Clark retorted with a snappish:

"Hell, no!"

"No Comment" at Office

The same question to Hoover's office got only "no comment" from a spokesman.

At the White House, Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters:

"It certainly is news to me—and I use the word 'news' in the very broadest sense."

Elaborating on his denial of the report, Clark said he was "amazed that a reputable newspaper would go to such lengths as to conjure up a story like that."

The FBI and its director have been known to be upset over revelation of their investigative methods and identification of some of their informants by publication of the documents. Asked yesterday why an FBI representative could not have refused to produce the documents and accepted a contempt citation as FBI Agent George R. McSwain did in the Roger Touhy case in Chicago June 1, a department spokesman told The Washington Post that:

In the Touhy case, the Department of Justice was in position to accept a citation for contempt as alternatives to producing its files. In the Coplon case, however, it had no such alternative; had it refused to produce the documents on order of Judge Albert L. Reeves, the case would have been thrown out of court.

Many Take Exception

Such an outcome would have weakened the department's position in dealing with cases in which FBI reports were involved since the possibility would always exist that the Government could be forced to drop the case by a court order to produce these reports.

Many persons touched by the mass of documents in the Coplon trial have taken exception to the FBI's investigative methods. Among these were Dr. Condon, former Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes and Fredric March.

The reports produced in the Coplon trial are typical of those made by the FBI in its investigations. They are not indictments or charges or even accusations, but simply compilations of whatever information its agents have collected.

Among this information, of course, is much that is trivial and some hearsay. It is included if it relates to the subject under investigation with no attempt to justify it, except that where the informant's reliability is known it may be indicated as a guide to the individual or agency that must eventually weigh the information.

This weighing, or "evaluation," is not done by the FBI, but by the agency for which the investigation was made. What the FBI produces is information that is not only as complete as possible, but which it believes would stand up under further checking.

Parallel Case Cited

A parallel case would be that of a newspaper reporter who sets out to check a report. He talks with everyone he can find who might have knowledge of the report and notes their answers. Some of them will give him rumors and second-hand information and these he checks and rechecks.

When finally he has collected sufficient information to build a story, he discards the rumor, the hearsay and the guessing and these do not get into the story he writes for publication. But they are in his notebook and if the notebook were published instead of the finished story, he could readily be accused by those unfamiliar with his methods of poor reporting and giving credence to misinformation.

Yet he could even more justly be charged with poor reporting if he neglected any possibility that might add to his store of facts, even though it appeared of little consequence from the beginning.

In order to protect its informants the FBI gives them code designations, just as a reporter may quote "reliable sources" when he has information but cannot reveal its source. To identify these FBI code designations might not only increase the difficulty of obtaining information but even jeopardize the informant.

Friends Are Concerned

Friends of the FBI are known to be concerned over the possible damage that might be done to its effectiveness should public confidence in its methods and its accuracy be shaken. Concern also is felt that revelation of the Coplon case documents might make informants reluctant to talk for fear their part in the investigation might some day be revealed.

The known difference between Clark and Hoover over revelation of the documents was aired in the House Tuesday by Representative Nixon (R., Calif.), who said Hoover had been overruled and "the security of the country" would have been better served had the case been dismissed.

"The effect of the action," he said, "also has been to bring a great deal of criticism on the FBI and cast doubt on the accuracy of its reports, due to the fact that these reports were admittedly unevaluated by the bureau."

Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) yesterday took sides in the Condon-Hoover disagreement. He said Condon's "attempt to discredit J. Edgar Hoover is an outrage. There is no more patriotic American servant than the chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

Rotary Abandons Motto Starting 'He Profits Most'

New York, June 15 (AP).—Rotary International has dropped one of its two traditional mottoes, it was revealed today at the service organization's fortieth annual meeting.

The discarded slogan was "He profits most who serves best."

The Rotary board of directors abandoned the slogan because it was felt the word "profit" might be misconstrued.

That leaves Rotary with one motto: "Service above self."

The delegates also voted to increase to $750,000 for three years authorized expenditures of the Rotary Foundation. The previous three-year limit was $450,000. Most of the money is used in providing fellowships for outstanding students all over the world.

Committee Fails To Vote Approval Of Minimum Wage

The Administration's watered-down bill to raise the national minimum wage law from 40 to 75 cents an hour lost a round yesterday in the House Labor Committee.

A motion to approve it, after a two-hour argument, lost on a 10-to-10 tie vote. Chairman John Lesinski (D., Mich.) said he would try for committee approval again next week.

Promise To Count On

The Recreation Board's decision to work gradually toward racial integration in all its facilities rather than banish segregation at once, and the steps it has taken in accordance with this formula, constitute a discreet but a statesmanlike compromise. It will be criticized by those at both extremes—the bitter-end bigots and the Utopia-tomorrow idealists. The fact is that a move even part way toward recreational integration in Washington such as the board has decided upon is an undertaking of major proportions in community adjustment. It must be judged not only in terms of the ideal but also in terms of the possible. On this basis the Recreation Board can no longer be said to lag behind the trend, and Mr. Wender's leadership, which we have not always found laudable, has in this instance been demonstrated.

The decision to open all school buildings to after-hour use by intergroup meetings, for instance, is a good deal more than seemed likely to come from the Recreation Board only a few months ago. It is not only an advance of considerable moment in itself, but an earnest for the future. In conjunction with other recent actions by the board, it gives body to the promise of progress away from segregation at a rate as rapid as circumstances seem to warrant. This is a promise that should be remembered for future reference. For the board's statement of intent does not justify it in sitting back for a long period of self-satisfied inaction. On the contrary, it constitutes belated recognition by the board of a responsibility that belongs to it as an organism of democracy in this Capital City. That is the responsibility not to lag behind but to lead the community in the steady accomplishment of equality. The obvious need for gradualism in attacking the problem of discrimination cannot be made an excuse for gradually doing nothing.

Battle Of The Books

Mr. Abraham J. Alexander of Brooklyn has brought suit against the public educational authorities of New York City to force them to exclude from the schools two celebrated classics of English literature, Shakespeare's comedy The Merchant of Venice and Dickens' novel Oliver Twist. These works, it is contended, help to plant the seeds of anti-Semitism in immature and impressionable minds, because they represent Jewish characters in an evil and invidious light. The characters in question are of course the vindictive Shylock and the sinister Fagin with his school of crime. The burden of the objection to them, as set forth by Mr. Joseph Goldstein, attorney for Mr. Alexander, seems to be that children who read these books are encouraged to suppose these characters to be typical of a whole religious group.

The Merchant of Venice is included in the curricula of most junior high schools of the country, and is thus the work through which most Americans are introduced to Shakespeare. The reason for its selection seems to have been that it is structurally one of the least complicated of the plays, and dramatically the one most likely to hold the interest of preadolescent imaginations. In New York it is included in the textbook list, and may be used in classwork at the discretion of principals. Oliver Twist, we are told, is not read in class but is available in the school libraries.

This question of prejudice can be and in fact has been raised by other groups. Catholics, for example, have objected in certain places to the inclusion of Kingsley's Westward, Ho! in high school reading lists, and here in Washington certain Negro organizations have raised a considerable fuss about Little Black Sambo in the kindergartens. Danish-Americans might with some propriety object to Hamlet, lest the character of King Claudius be taken as typical of their race, and Italians might with even stronger reason object to Titus Andronicus.

It seems to us that the people who have the strongest case in such matters are the Welsh. Almost every English-speaking child is encouraged at a very early age to take a prejudiced view of the Welsh character. But, as far as we know, the Welsh as a group have made no very serious effort to have this injustice corrected. And perhaps they have been well-advised to ignore it, for if there is very much anti-Welsh sentiment abroad nowadays in this country, it has escaped our notice. If the principle of excluding books on grounds of misrepresentation were carried to its logical conclusion, there would be no literature left to study.

Enter The Police State

Attorney General Clark says that Communists are leaving the country, but both the Department of Justice and Congressman Hobbs are concerned over the large number of deportable aliens who are still here. Approximately 3000 such aliens continue to live in virtual immunity from the deportation law because no country will receive them. Some are believed to have falsified statements as to their country of origin so as to avoid deportation. Some are believed to be criminals, subversives and peddlers of narcotics. In the case of some of the subversives, there are strong indications that their home lands are denying them return passports only because they wish to keep the aliens in question here doing their dirty work. Congress cannot reasonably be asked to ignore this despicable abuse of our hospitality.

The trouble is that in devising a remedy for this difficult problem, Representative Hobbs has gone to extremes in proposing to grant discretion to the Attorney General. One of the purposes of his bill is to put pressure upon persons illegally in the country to cooperate in bringing about their own deportation. This would be done in two ways. First, the Attorney General could require the deportable alien to report regularly, to submit to medical and psychiatric examination, to give information under oath as to his habits, associations and activities, and to conform to other "reasonable written restrictions." Second, the Attorney General could deny the privilege of release under supervision to some specified groups of aliens and imprison them until their deportation could be arranged. The result would be to introduce the concentration camp into our system. Apparently some aliens who cannot be deported anywhere could be held for the remainder of their lives.

This drastic penalty would not be reserved for use against Communists and other subversives. It could be invoked against students, businessmen, and visitors who have overstayed their allotted time. No doubt the Attorney General would exercise the power with discretion, but that seems to us beside the point in considering the merits of the bill. Constitutional government cannot be safeguarded by giving officials power to destroy the liberty of the people and then relying upon those officials to use their authority wisely. History shows that oppressive measures applied to aliens are very likely to be extended to citizens. The only safe course, in our opinion, is to avoid the incarceration of anyone when evidence sufficient for conviction of crime punishable by imprisonment is lacking.

It seems to us reasonable to place under supervision those aliens who have been found subject to deportation. Since they are illegally in the country and refuse to leave, the least they can expect is that the Department of Justice will keep a close check on their activities. Let them be required to give a periodical accounting for their conduct. But let us not imitate the police states by throwing even deportable aliens into concentration camps or by giving the Attorney General any such sweeping control over the lives of men and women as the Hobbs bill provides.

Eisenhower's Point

General Eisenhower's statements on education, notably his inaugural address at Columbia University last October, have hitherto been full of common sense and courage. It is all the more distressing, therefore, that his letter to Representative Gwinn on the perils of Federal aid to education seems grounded in fear and illogic. The dangers of centralized control and interference in State and local school affairs are inherent, of course, in any system of educational grants. As we have already pointed out, specifically in the case of the AEC fellowships, it would be fatal to adopt the policy that every check from the Treasury is a warrant for Federal intrusion into the recipient's thoughts and actions. However, safeguards have been thrown around both the new education bills before Congress—safeguards of which General Eisenhower, judging from his letter, seems to be ignorant.

The Thomas bill, passed last month by the Senate, does this by a long and careful prohibition against any bureaucratic tying on of strings. The House Committee on Education and Labor has before it a different version, authored by Representative Barden, that is perhaps even more effective. It simply provides that once the grants have passed to the States, they become funds of the State subject to its laws alone, provided they be "expended only for current expenditures for public elementary and secondary schools." This, it seems to us, disposes of the possibility of Federal intervention—certainly far more so than a bill based on General Eisenhower's suggestion. He is in favor of aid to poor States but against aid to rich States. What is the yardstick? General Eisenhower gives none, though, even with a yardstick, there would have to be discrimination in the nature of things, and discrimination would invite more Federal intervention.

Both the Thomas and the Barden bills put all States on the same basis by applying to all the same formula. This is, surely, an additional guarantee against Federally imposed conditions. The formula determines objectively how much each State is to receive and the money is automatically made available through the Treasury Department. And the formula is so framed as to maintain impartiality and at the same time throw the aid mainly to the poorer States; for instance, Mississippi would receive far more than New York State. Under General Eisenhower's differential method, on the contrary, the door would be open for the Federal Government, in deciding which States were in need of help, to add any conditions it wished. It thus appears that the general is arguing against himself.

Trieste's Voice

The remarkable thing about the elections in Trieste is not so much the defeat of the Communist factions as the tiny showing of the Tito wing of the Communist Party. Tito's ambitions have never been disguised; he wants Trieste and Salonika, with Trieste in first place. Indeed, at one time there was reserved for Trieste a place as one of the component states of Tito's Federated Republic. But the people of this potentially great seaport on the Adriatic have never reciprocated Tito's interest in them. They are particularistic, living, many of them, in a dead-and-gone past, when they were part of and the outlet for Austria-Hungary. If, however, they have to make a choice, that choice, as is shown by the election returns, would be Italy.

The poll fortifies the American-British-French proposal that Trieste be given back to Italy. It is the only sensible solution. The notion of a Free State of Trieste never made much sense to this newspaper, for the territory is not viable in an economic sense, and as a separate entity, moreover, would simply reproduce all the headaches that the prewar generation incurred over Danzig. Its lack of viability is shown in the fact that in spite of Marshall aid, assistance from Italy, and a post-UNRRA grant, the preference of satellite Europe for Trieste over Tito-held Fiume—in spite of all this, Trieste is still not self-supporting.

Pending the clarification of Trieste's status, Allied Military Government seems to be doing a good job. In addition to strengthening the economy, it is removing some of the injustices that accompanied the Mussolini regime. Mussolini insisted on the Italianization of Trieste and its hinterland, where there are many Slovenes, and sought to stamp out the language as well as irredentist feeling. Allied Military Government has restored schools for the Slovene minority in Trieste, and it may be hoped that the Italians (in the event that they get Trieste) will keep up this liberal approach. In that event the fierce and unforgiving Slovenes may one day become reasonable folk to live with. In the meantime Trieste has made its voice heard for the first time since 1922, and it justifies the Allied proposal.

The Law's Delays

Eternal vigilance is the price of justice no less than of liberty. A few brief years of neglect of the courts, or of negligent administration within the judicial system, would be sufficient to effect a widespread denial of justice. Indeed, grave deterioration in the quality of justice is inevitable if the courts stand still while their caseloads are increased. For an overburdened court which can hear only a fraction of the cases on its docket operates to defeat the ends of justice in only a lesser degree than arbitrary restrictions upon the judicial process.

We are moved to these reflections by the bill which Representative Byrne will submit to the House today providing for 23 additional circuit and district judgeships throughout the country. The issue had been brought up by the Judicial Conference of the United States, both at its last annual meeting and at a special meeting held in March. Inter alia it recommended for the District of Columbia three additional judgeships for the Circuit Court and two for the District Court. In all cases the reasons for the recommendations have been presented by the Judicial Conference in convincing and objective detail, and they form the basis of the Byrne bill.

Take, for instance, the argument for the District of Columbia. The population of Washington and environs has increased over 400,000 since 1940, with an accompanying burden upon court business. The number of cases filed in the Court of Appeals rose from 264 in 1947 to 348 in 1948 and to an estimated number of 433 in fiscal 1949. Yet no additional judgeships have been created for this jurisdiction since 1938. To dispose of its increased caseload—the highest of pending cases per judge among all of the U. S. Courts of Appeal—a complement of nine is needed and asked for. A similar situation prevails in the District Court. Need elsewhere is outlined with care and a sense of economy and responsibility. We hope it will be as clear to the House as it is to us that the interests of litigants are suffering from this shortage of Federal judicial manpower.

MISSOURI SUMMER

Who will revile this heat?
The gold grain swelling
Of barley and oat and ivory-turning wheat,
The little fragrant peaches, leopard-skinned,
Grapes out of porphyry, like Galatea
Stirred and grown sweet in her cool and rounded limbs,
The osage oranges hung like moons in summer,
Thick in the dark of the cool unstirring hedge,
The long, green melons and thieving pickaninnies,
The yellow lilies tangled among the sedge?

Only the alien suffers. The heirs of summer
Surrender themselves to the rich benevolent sun,
Drinking deep drafts of the sweet and slumbrous nectar
That is rich reward for the work they have not done.

"Territorial Education"

The Washington Post has done a much-deserved service to the territories and especially to Puerto Rico with the publication of your editorial of June 12, on "Territorial Education."

In these days when our Nation is helping many of the other nations of the world so generously and when we are spending large sums to rehabilitate many countries, it behooves us to look around to our own underprivileged citizens in need of education, public health and other services. In the case of Puerto Rico, 50 years of American government finds the island struggling to educate its rapidly increasing population. The average child during the last 50 years has received no more than a three-year elementary education because of a lack of school facilities.

The Barden Bill (H. R. 4643) does not put Puerto Rico on parity with the States, but its provisions for the island would do much to encourage a people who already have made a great effort to educate their children and who have shown that they can help themselves as you so well state in your fine editorial.

Military Vs. Civil Pay

I do not know where G. E. C. (letter published June 8) received his information about a comparison between military and civil pay, but let's compare it with the facts. My husband is a staff sergeant, one grade higher than sergeant.

	My list	G.E.C. List for sergt.
Salary	$1380.00	$1668
Food	372.60
Quarters	465.00	1212
Clothing		50
Gross	$2217.60	$2930
Minus inc. tax	154.40	52

Clothing was purposely omitted. My husband doesn't like to go visiting in his work clothing, so his clothing costs just as much as anyone elses. Dental and medical care isn't available for dependents, and sometimes even for my husband, due to the shortage of doctors.

All our shopping is done at the corner store as PX prices are slightly higher on everything except luxuries such as jewelry. Due to involuntary movements the cost of living is higher. All personnel below the first three grades must defray all expense for household goods and dependents. My husband could retire in 20 years at $824 yearly—then he would have to start at the bottom again in order to live.

Condon and Hoover

It seems to me, and there are many others who feel as I do, that Dr. Edward U. Condon is entirely wrong in demanding an apology of Mr. J. Edgar Hoover because one of his informants used the name of Mrs. Condon in preparing a report on a subject he was directed to explore.

How can the services of Mr. Hoover's informants be competently implemented if they are restricted as to whose names they should and should not use? It seems to me that Mr. Condon should shrink from such publicity instead of inviting it, especially since his qualifications were so bitterly challenged by the Senate when his nomination was before that august body.

H. J. ARNETT.

Washington.

The attack of Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, upon both the person of J. Edgar Hoover and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which he so ably heads, cannot be countenanced by any loyal citizen of the U. S. A., or read without registering stern disapproval therewith.

There is neither desire nor intent on my part to minimize or detract from the personal ability or qualifications of Dr. Condon, as a scientist of high standing in the community. His method of approach becomes all the more obnoxious, for the very reason that a man of his standing should know better!

In the first place, Dr. Condon is well aware (or should know) that Mr. Hoover is in no way personally involved in the unfortunate developments attending the Coplon trial and the disclosures of records pertaining thereto.

In the second place, all who have followed this case carefully know full well that the "top secret" FBI report involving Mrs. Condon was introduced in court without approval of Mr. Hoover or his highly-efficient organization—on order of the court, and over the strenuous objections of the Government.

Knowing this, Dr. Condon has gone far out of his way in attacking the "methods of the FBI" and directly implying that there is something inherently wrong therewith. He is entirely "off base," when he tries to create the impression that "decent Americans" will either condemn J. Edgar Hoover and the splendid organization he has built up over the past 25 years—or condone his (Dr. Condon's) conduct in this entire affair.

MacArthur's Reply

Americans would do well to consider a small news item of June 13. General MacArthur's reply to the Soviet note protesting police "suppression" of trade union demonstrations in Japan.

The general demonstrated an excellent understanding of Soviet tactics in the cold war, and effectively called the Russians on their latest use of the "big lie." Moreover, he exposed to the watching world the true motives behind the Russian note.

As they have done so often before, and with doubtless effect, the Russians issued a formal note not for its ostensible diplomatic intent. They merely desired a new excuse for a vigorous propaganda blast against the United States.

As in the cases of previous such notes, this latest Soviet theme was designed to incite distrust and dissatisfaction with America in the minds of the peoples of the world.

In their use of the "big lie," monstrous fabrications are shouted at the world by the Soviet press and radio. The result is that the common man hears the United States charged with all manner of crime and treachery against group and nation.

Then, instead of countering these accusations so as best to neutralize their propaganda effect, the State Department has ritually responded with long-winded, cryptic paragraphs of diplomatese. The common man—the true progaganda target—remains most impressed by the initial, concise, easy to understand Soviet blast.

General MacArthur, however, has done differently. He concisely and clearly exposed to the Japanese public the truth of the issue. He showed that the Russian charges were only designed to incite disorder and violence in the recovering Japanese society. The general also pointed out that he believed that the Soviet note was an attempt to screen Russian failure yet to return 400,000 Japanese war prisoners to their homeland. This fact is always a cause of great embarrassment to Russia in its Japanese activities.

"Forbidden Duel"

Your excellent editorial of June 7 asks a full investigation of whether the B-36 can accomplish its designed task. Let us not forget to ask also whether our reliance on the B-36 may not boomerang, even if it can accomplish all that is claimed for it.

We are steadily approaching the date when Russia can be expected to have atomic weapons. These weapons, let us remember, can be brought into our cities by submarine and through clandestine channels, perhaps more surely and accurately than by aircraft.

Would Russia necessarily start a war against us by such means? Not if Russia has learned the lesson of 1919-41. That lesson is that the United States can best be defeated if lulled into complacency and indifference toward slow encroachment and infiltration at home and abroad, which will have undermined our defenses fatally before we awake. That is what the cold war is about.

This is Russia's favorite and most proven politico-military technique. Our past record, our latent yearning to become free of expensive foreign commitment, plus the possibility of deflation and the continuing weakness of Europe and Asia, all favor the success of this method.

Why then would Russia repeat the mistake the Japs made at Pearl Harbor? Why would Russia desire to infuriate us into violent and determined retaliation when we might otherwise remain asleep, or at best divided and uncertain, until too late? Why, indeed, unless our commitment and itchiness to win a cheap war through quick atomic devastation should lead Russia to believe her best hope was to beat us to it?

Here then is the evil of the B-36. The more we rely on it, or on any successor atom bomber, the more we insure that war will be begun not at our choosing, but by enemy attack on our homes.

The more we rely on atom bombing of cities, and scuttle our other military abilities, the more we shall be forced to use our atomic advantage before it is surpassed or countered.

The more we come to rely on the atom, the less we shall be willing to consider any proposal for the limitation of atomic armaments or of their use against cities and civilians. For if we gave up this, we would have left ourselves with no other defense.

The more you and I rely on the B-36, the more thoroughly we commit ourselves to the irretraceable path toward complete, senseless annihilation of civilization as we know it.

Search For Safe Living

By Malvina Lindsay

New American Dream

SOLID CITIZENS who frequently deplore the national concern over security are getting more ammunition for their deploring right along. For ghosts of the 1930s stalk public imagination with every reported business layoff and retrenchment. Hence there is more talk of guaranteed annual wages, of pensions, widened social security benefits.

The college class of 1949 is reported in polls to want jobs working for someone else and to aspire "only" to the achievement of a calm and ordered existence. Employers say they are surprised at the questions about retirement pay and pensions asked by baby-faced job applicants. And a recent Gallup Poll reported people generally as preferring steady jobs to better paying and riskier ones.

That is alarming, declare many comfortable Americans. Are we, they ask, becoming a Nation of weaklings? What has become of the spirit of '49, of the Oklahoma Sooners, the Alaska gold rushers? Why, their orators demand, are once aggressive, daring Americans following the "drab, dull, regimented goal of security?"

HOWEVER, the security concern is not exclusively an American disease, as the Gallup Poll showed. People polled in four other countries, Holland, Sweden, Australia and Canada also showed overwhelming preference for steady jobs as against risky opportunities. Nor can blame for this be saddled on people's orneriness, on political villains, on labor demagogues, on the government, or even on one's pet hate. It goes deeper and reaches further.

Today's widespread economic anxiety has been heightened by memories of the early 1930s and by the living upsets of two world wars. It has been intensified by inflation, which has wiped out savings. But its chief abettor through the years has been a developing factory civilization.

Only about one fourth of the population now lives on farms. While many farmers, especially of the tenant class, feel as insecure as their city cousins, yet generally they have more confidence about their food and shelter.

Moreover, where is youth that has the gambling spirit of its forbears to rush for free gold, homesteads, oil wells, timber, cattle lands? True enough, there are many intangible frontiers—as in science and technology—and many youths are exploring them. But the man who finds his field overcrowded or himself a misfit in what he undertakes no longer is sustained by the assurance he can always "go West." California at least is shipping them back this way.

SOCIAL developments also cause the industrial family to be anxious about tomorrow. People are living longer and families are smaller. So are houses. What is to become of parents when they get old? "I don't want to live on my children" is the constant refrain of many Americans who barely get by on what they earn. Yet instead of being applauded for this sturdy American feeling of independence they are cited as examples of the "security neuroses."

Higher living standards that the factory age has brought add to the American's concern over security. He wants his family to eat and dress well, to have good medical and dental care. He is ambitious about his children's education. Child rearing standards have been raised in recent years owing to wide public education in this field. And the American parent does not have a peasantlike acceptance of his children's status. He is determined they shall have the best. No wonder he worries as to where the money is coming from.

There is no way of measuring concern over security against that of a half century or so ago. Yet the "full dinner pail" was the slogan of McKinley's campaign in 1900. And Coxey's army of the jobless marched on Washington in 1894.

No doubt most Americans and all other people need more sense of inner psychological security developed in them. But those who deplore this interest in a "safe" economic tomorrow and who themselves have generally had their own security buttressed by inherited wealth, might lose some of their unconcern about how their bills were to be paid if they tried getting along on the $500 to $1999 a year received by about 30 per cent of nonfarm-wage earners.

Saturday Store Closing

While in the shopping section downtown Saturday my attention was drawn to the huge throngs bent on spending money. It occurred to me that Saturday closing particularly now is extremely foolish. This could be the opportunity to put the many unemployed to work, by training more of them to take the places of old employes who are entitled to the weekend. It will leave Saturday for harassed young mothers who are relieved by fathers who are off.

Saturday is the poor man's shopping day—it is the social shopping day in Main Street towns. Washington would do well to have Saturday shopping in the summer also, and for longer hours so residents of nearby cities could come in to shop.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Recession And Depression

THE RECESSION, which began in the autumn, has been gathering momentum in the past eight weeks. While the effects here are still moderate, they are already so serious abroad that unless firm measures are taken promptly, a depression, which could become deep and hard indeed to deal with, is in the making. Not much time can safely be lost in reversing the deflationary policies, adopted in 1948, to counteract the post-war inflationary boom.

LIPPMANN

FOR AN ESSENTIAL characteristic of all measures to deal with inflation or deflation is that they do not produce their economic effects immediately. Thus our deflationary measures—to restrict credit, to sterilize gold imports, to reduce purchasing power with the budgetary surplus—were applied at the end of 1947 and early in 1948. They were designed to contract money and credit. They began to take visible effect only at the end of 1948, and are now really taking hold at home and abroad.

The deflationary measures should almost certainly have been reversed sooner. Even had they been reversed sooner, the forces of deflation would still have continued to operate for a considerable time. Now the deeper the deflation, the less easily can it be controlled and checked by such moderate and subtle measures as the Federal Reserve can take by reducing its reserve requirements, reducing its sales of Government bonds, ceasing to drain gold from the rest of the world and then sterilizing it here, and the Treasury by reducing taxes and accepting a budgetary deficit.

THE CRITICAL question as to whether the modest recovery which has been achieved in western Europe is to be sustained, and is not to break down in a depression, is now upon us. Almost certainly the focal point of the danger is in Britain and the sterling area. If our own recession is not checked, if at the same time Congress commits the error of reducing the dollar funds available to the outer world, if on top of these deflationary conditions, new barriers are raised to imports, the general devaluation of the currencies is almost unavoidable. If that happens, it will almost certainly bring on a deep depression with serious unemployment throughout the western world.

In our own interest and that of the free world we must, therefore, address ourselves immediately to our own recession—to a prompt and decisive reversal of our deflationary credit, monetary, tax and budgetary policies, and of the disposition in Congress to deflate world trade by new import barriers and fictitious economies in foreign aid.

BUT THOUGH THIS American reversal is primary and essential, it will not suffice. We shall have to face up to the fact that though the Marshall Plan has provided much relief and has stimulated some recovery, it is operating to bring about a contraction of world trade and a general deflation. For in setting 1952 as the target date when Europe must be independent of the American subsidy, we have committed Europe and ourselves to a course of action which cannot bring about, will actually prevent, a rising and general prosperity.

The truth is that western Europe, including Britain and Germany which are its two greatest industrial nations, cannot by 1952, or within the foreseeable future, maintain its standard of life and become independent of a dollar subsidy from the United States. If the Marshall countries must be independent of the subsidy, they must reduce their imports from North America, they must by currency and discriminatory trade devices exclude or drastically reduce American exports to Europe, South America and the Middle East, and they must build up slowly, painfully, and at uneconomic cost, substitutes for the North American imports that they cannot earn the money to buy.

THE PLAIN FACT is that in the year ahead Europe must choose between recovery and financial independence—between maintaining a very modest rise in the standard of life and the elimination of the dollar deficit. The two goals of the Marshall Plan, economic recovery and financial equilibrium in the exchanges, are for the foreseeable future incompatible. We shall have to choose the one goal or the other, and now that economic conditions are deteriorating, that choice will have to be made much sooner than anyone anticipated when the Marshal Plan was adopted.

There can be no question that, faced with this choice, we must decide to sustain the recovery by American measures to cover the European dollar deficit over a long period of time. For if we sacrifice the recovery in the western world, we shall jeopardize the whole postwar political reconstruction, and with it our own economic stability.

HOW THIS COUNTRY is to deal with the deep, perhaps permanent, problem of the world dollar deficit is a question which is not easily answered. But this much at least seems a reasonable hypothesis with which to approach the question: the direct subsidies, as now provided by the ECA, cannot go on forever. They were necessary for an emergency. For the long run they are morally and politically impossible and undesirable. They create a relationship among the free nations which is incompatible with their independence and their dignity.

The orthodox alternative, which is private capital investment abroad, is almost certainly not going to be sufficient. Too much of the world is unstable to warrant or encourage private investment on a large enough scale.

THERE REMAIN measures, which have been used before though never on the scale which may be required, to support sterling and perhaps certain other key currencies, assuring their convertibility for current transactions, once the necessary readjustments of their value have been made.

In all probability a monetary program of this type will come to be the successor of the Marshall Plan. It will find favor as the most feasible device for sustaining the world recovery and of averting a great depression and the political disorder which would surely grow out of it.

Wendell Willkie's Son May Aid GOP in 1950

By the United Press

Philip Willkie, son of the 1940 Republican presidential nominee, was considered yesterday for a part in the GOP campaign to recapture control of the Senate in the 1950 election.

Willkie, 29, now an Indiana legislator, discussed the idea with Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee.

Brewster said they talked about having Willkie join the committee staff as assistant to the chairman, but no decision was made.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Shotgun Loyalty Methods

THE WHEELS of the Government loyalty investigation grind on and on and the cost in money and time can be computed with at least approximate accuracy. But the cost in insecurity, in fear, suspicion, and divisiveness cannot be computed.

The inquiry, covering more than two and a half million Government workers, has contributed to the climate of doubt and division now prevailing. Common sense would have dictated the procedure the British are following.

ONLY CIVIL servants connected with secret or restricted work are investigated in Britain, and then the job is thoroughly and efficiently done. If a government employe engaged in secret work is found to be part of a subversive organization, he is shifted to nonsecret work or, in some instances, given the pension to which his years of service entitle him and asked to retire from the government.

The process in this country is open to serious doubt on the score of the shotgun method used to cover millions of employes—those in highly secret work and those in perfectly routine nonsecret jobs. Because of its very diffuseness and its lack of discrimination, the real loyalty risk may evade detection under the loose blanket of American procedure.

The lengths to which it can be carried and the injustice which it can do are illustrated in the case of Mrs. Anne V. Alling, who has been suspended from the Veterans' Administration on suspicion of having had Communist associations and Communistic thoughts. Mrs. Alling, 59 years old, is nearly blind and in her civil service job with the VA she typed letters about veterans' insurance from dictaphone records.

At times the record of Mrs. Alling's interrogation before the Fourth Regional Loyalty Board reads like a medieval inquisition. Take the following:

Question: How did you feel about the German policies up until the time of the end of the war? Were you opposed to them?

Answer: You mean opposed to the Nazis?

Question: Yes.

Answer: Oh, yes, we were all opposed to the Nazis.

Question: Why?

Answer: Why!

Question: Yes.

Answer: Well, weren't they trying to come over here and trying to take our country away from us! They were trying to take the world. They were very cruel.

Question: Do you believe that Russia intends such a program?

Answer: It is possible that some day she will have the same idea and, if so, we would be against her just as we were against the Nazis.

I'm afraid that is fairly typical. Mrs. Alling, who has suffered a great deal in her life and yet retains a stubborn sense of independence and integrity, did not give the pat answers the interrogators expected. That may be one reason the board ordered her suspended.

THREE BOARD members of the Fourth Regional Loyalty Board spent 4½ hours in the interrogation and many more hours pouring over the file and the transcript. Back of this were the hours spent by the FBI in getting the statements of former associates and neighbors in Atlanta, Ga., and Washington.

Whatever the cost, it was too great. It was a waste of the time of men and women who should have something far better and more constructive to do for the salaries provided by the taxpayers.

Mrs. Alling has remained in Washington, although she can ill afford to do so, to carry an appeal to the top loyalty board. Her attorney, David Cobb, is acting without fee and providing essential affidavits and records.

The present approach seems to me to put a premium on intimidation, on gossip and even on a kind of blackmail. A case in point is that of Roy James, who took a civil service position for which he was well equipped after he had unsuccessfully run for Congress. His political enemies denounced him as a Communist and the FBI, Naval Intelligence and Military Intelligence all investigated him and finally cleared him.

To date 8674 individuals have been investigated and "full field reports" have been submitted on them. Only 258 individuals have thus far been found ineligible and of this number 48 were restored after appeal. If many of the cases are like the Alling case, then we are entitled to ask whether it was worth all the winnowing and sifting to find this tiny grain of disloyalty.

Eisenhower's View Attacked

By The Associated Press

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's stand on Federal aid to education was criticized before a Senate subcommittee yesterday by a New York City Board of Education spokesman.

James Marshall, a member of the board, told a Senate Labor and Public Welfare Subcommittee "the notion that the proposal is in some way associated with the idea of 'socialism' as suggested by General Eisenhower seems to be entirely without foundation."

The views of the general, president of Columbia University, were expressed in a letter to Representative Gwynn (R., N.Y.) Monday.

"I would flatly oppose any grant by the Federal Government to all States in the Union for educational purposes," he wrote.

He said any such program would tend toward "paternalism, if not outright socialism."

But he said there are areas where tax resources are not big enough to provide proper schooling and for such areas he would support Federal aid "under formulas that would permit no abuse, no direct interference of the Federal authority in educational processes and no opportunity to expand the flow of Federal money into areas where need could not be clearly demonstrated."

Marshall said he was fearful that Eisenhower's statement "may be misinterpreted and cause confusion in consideration of the measure, which is designed to provide funds for construction of school buildings."

Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) subcommittee chairman, interrupted to say that Eisenhower was "entirely wrong on the principles of education."

Election Results Studied in Virginia

Orme

These were some of the results and developments:

In the Falls Church election of a nine-member city council, businessman Keith Price, 903 Hillwood ave., yesterday said he had withdrawn his Tuesday night threat to contest the election in the First Ward.

Price had claimed the ballots were improperly printed, that poll workers were too close to the polling place, and that printed matter favorable to several candidates was inside the door.

The election gave incumbent Mayor Albert M. Orme an easy 582 to 121 victory over write-in candidate Jack Eakin, incumbent councilman who sought neither the council seat nor mayor's post.

In the election, which saw a near-record 873 votes cast, the three First Ward council winners were: James E. Durant, former councilman defeated last June, 244 votes; veteran councilman Sherman Wells, 205; and real estate broker D. Kemper Grille, 170.

First Ward runners-up were write-in candidates Mrs. Eva Douglas, a Library of Congress employe, with 119 votes, and John Koons, city businessman, with 89.

Second Ward council winners were: Incumbent J. H. McCarthy, veteran of 10 years on the council, 139 votes; Mrs. Dillon S. Myer, housewife, 110 votes, and incumbent Samuel E. McCrary, appointed recently to fill an interim council post, 101 votes.

J. H. Marr, phone company installation man, trailed with 88 votes, and Albert K. Hovey-King, a construction equipment supplier, had 65.

Councilmen elected from the Third Ward were: Incumbent Lee M. Rhoads, 231 votes; developer Mandley T. Rust, 215 votes, and incumbent J. C. McRae, 200 votes. McRae narrowly nosed out runner-up W. David Brewer, air line statistician, who had 199 votes. Incumbent Councilman Boyd Case was defeated for reelection, with 161 votes.

Alexandria

In Alexandria, Democrats swept all of the seven city council seats at stake, although one of the Democrats, R. Samuel Lucket, an incumbent, barely beat off the challenge of two independent candidates.

Because he polled the highest number of votes of any candidate, Franklin P. Backus became Alexandria's mayor as well as a member of the city council. This was Backus' first political race.

Those who will round out the council with Backus and Luckett are James M. Duncan, jr.; Albert A. Smoot, Roy C. Bragg, Leroy S. Bendheim and Marshall J. Beverley. All but Duncan are incumbents.

Elected without opposition were V. Floyd Williams as city attorney and C. Page Waller, incumbent city collector.

Gaither Leaves Trieste

Street Rezone Plan Opposed At Hearing

Strong opposition to the rezoning of 14th and 15th sts. se. and ne. was raised yesterday at an all-day public hearing held by the District Zoning Commission in the District Building.

Property owners testified that their land holdings would depreciate in value from 25 to 50 per cent if the proposed rezoning were enacted. The proposal to rezone as residential was made after a survey showed that 83 per cent of 17 acres in the area bounded by 15th st. ne. and se., G st. ne. and Pennsylvania ave. se. is not used commercially.

The Southeast Citizens Association and the Southeast Businessmen's Association opposed the 15th st. section of the rezoning plan.

After hearing witnesses on 10 cases, the commission recessed to Monday at 10 a. m. to hear the remainder of the docket.

Among the 10, controversy developed over one proposal to change land on the east side of Connecticut ave. between Livingston and Morrison sts. nw. from residential to commercial and on a second one calling for a similar change in the property on the west side of 19th st. between N st. and Sunderland pl. nw.

A discussion about a change in the zoning of an apartment house at 2501 Q st. nw. was tabled after Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner who is chairman of the commission, recommended the matter be referred to the Board of Zoning Adjustment for action.

200 Youths Open 19th 4-H Club Camp

The nineteenth annual national 4-H Club Camp opened last night in Interdepartmental Auditorium with 200 boy and girl delegates and 100 adults Agriculture Department Extension Service leaders in attendance.

Represented at the convention, which is slated to close next Wednesday, are rural communities from 47 States and Puerto Rico. Nevada did not send a delegation.

M. L. Wilson, director of the extension service in a welcoming speech, urged the delegates to strive for a better understanding of American principles as a means toward a peaceful world.

Other speakers last night included Dr. E. H. Shinn, Gertrude L. Warren, and R. A Turner, all of the extension service.

Today the delegates will be addressed by Secretary of Agriculture Charles F Brennan in the Agriculture Department's Jefferson Memorial auditorium. National 4-H Club Camp citations will be presented to 11 civic and industrial leaders and 25-year service citations to six State 4-H Club leaders. President Truman will be presented with an honorary 4-H pin at noon in the White House.

Later the delegates will tour the department's 12,000-acre agriculture research center at Beltsville. An "International Citizenship" party will be held in the Chamber of Commerce Building tonight.

'Santa Heim' Founder Fined On State Tax

Harry H. Heim, sr., Christmas ornament manufacturer, was found guilty in Baltimore Criminal Court yesterday of failing to file a State tax return on his $31,200 income for 1948.

He was fined $100 and costs.

Judge Robert France, in imposing the fine, stated: "I do not think the case reflects on his moral character or honesty."

Heim, who bought and renovated the little village of Savage and developed there "Santa Heim," apparently found the accounting side of his $1,500,000 business "a little beyond his capacity," Judge France commented.

ATS Argues Business Right To Bar Anyone

A restaurant operator has the common-law right to exclude from his facilities "whomsoever he pleases," attorneys for Air Terminal Services, Inc., argued yesterday in a race discrimination suit in the Alexandria Federal Court.

Air Terminal Services is being sued for $38,000 by Mrs. Helen Nash, 1330 13th st. nw., who claims the ATS-operated restaurant at Washington National Airport refused to serve her. She also is suing Eastern Airlines for $10,000 for referring her to the dining room without warning her of what would happen.

Yesterday's hearing was on a motion of ATS and Eastern Airlines to drop the suit. Judge Albert V. Bryan took the motion under advisement.

Attorney Frederick Ball, representing ATS, said the restaurant is a "private business" even though it is operated on Federal land at National Airport, and a person in private business can let in or exclude "anyone he wishes."

He said that since no physical force was used to remove Mrs. Nash from the restaurant, "there can be no recovrey of damages."

Attorney George Smith, representing Eastern Airlines, said the airline's connection with the restaurant incident was "too remote" to have caused Mrs. Nash any mental injury.

Mrs. Nash's attorneys, William S. Thompson and James Washington, said her exclusion violated Federal "policy" against discrimination in public facilities situated on Government land.

Hospital Plan Held Illegal In Alexandria

The Alexandria City Council was advised last night that it can not legally join other northern Virginia communities in forming a communicable disease hospital commission.

City Attorney Joseph M. Pancoast told the council a State law authorizes counties and towns, but not cities, to form such a body.

The council indicated the city will take part in the work unofficially until it receives legal authority.

In other actions, the council:

1. Agreed, at the request of the Alexandria Animal Welfare League to reduce the fee necessary to redeem a dog from the pound from $5 to $1.
2. Asked Pancoast to draft an ordinance permitting the council, as a time saver, to dispense with a reading of minutes before each meeting.
3. Authorized transfer of $7850 from several small accounts to set up the recently authorized fire prevention bureau; and passed on the first of two readings a $9500 appropriation to buy nine lots adjacent to the Maury school for playground space.

Suburban Bus, Capital Transit Vie for Routes

Baltimore, June 15 (AP).—The Washington Suburban Bus Line today said "the Capital Transit Co. is stepping on its toes in its eagerness for new business in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties."

A scramble for the thousands of residents in new housing developments close to the District line pitted the two transportation companies against each other before the Maryland Public Service Commission.

At issue were two applications by Capital Transit to extend and reroute several of its lines in the Maryland area north of the National Capital. The new service is aimed at the many new developments which have sprung up since the wartime housing shortage.

Duplication Charged

The Washington Suburban Line opposed the applications on the ground the changes would duplicate service it already is providing. At the same time, Washington Suburban stuck in an application of its own for extended service.

The Public Service Commission took the matter under consideration.

The first application by Capital was for extension of its line between Chevy Chase and the intersection of Colston pl. and the East-West hwy. It wants to continue the line down the highway to Grubb rd. and Kalmia rd. to its terminus at Georgia ave. and Alaska rd. at Silver Spring.

This extension would offer service to two developments, Rock Creek Forest and Rock Creek Gardens, particularly connections for downtown Washington.

S. H. Kahn, secretary of Oriole Motor Coach Lines, which owns Suburban, complained his company offered substantially the same service now.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Tagging Some of the Bases:

CLEVELAND'S INDIANS are not doing well, seven games to the rear of the league-leading Yankees, but certainly there is no lack of hustle on the part of Manager Lou Boudreau. The other night at Boston, he popped up as the club's first baseman, after putting in a week at third base.

Previous to that, Boudreau turned over his shortstop job to Rookie Ray Boone in an effort to strengthen the Cleveland defenses. When the Indians got to Boston, with its chummy left-field fence inviting a tattoo by right-handed hitters, Boudreau benched Mickey Vernon and packed his lineup with seven right-handers, including himself at first base.

POVICH

It paid off handsomely, what with the Indians getting 10 runs, but Boudreau nor any other manager can maintain that sort of a juggling act all summer It's obvious that the Indians aren't the same good ball team that won the 1948 pennant. They don't have the agility of Boudreau at shortstop, Ken Keltner has slowed dismally both with the bat and in the field, and Dale Mitchell is the only outfielder with a respectable batting average.

THE NEW PENNANT threat, who must be rated over the Indians, is the Detroit Tigers, although they don't look like a solid ball club, either, and only the general weakness of the league permits them to crowd the Yankees for first place.

Detroit has come up, though, with the league's best pitcher in Virgil Trucks, a fact that is generally acknowledged despite the 10 wins of the Yankees' Vic Raschi. Trucks has nabbed only 9 victories, but he is the more nearly invincible.

When Trucks tossed that one-hitter into the faces of the Athletics the other night, there was no general surprise. The sturdy Detroit right hander this season is throwing the fastest pitch in the league—faster than Newhouser, faster than Feller. His fireball is virtually his only stock in trade, but it is axiomatic that a pitcher doesn't need anything else if he can throw 'em past the hitters.

In Trucks and Third Baseman George Kell, the Tigers have two tremendous ball players, but their outfield is disorganized and Kell is their only infielder who ever came close to hitting .300.

THE YANKEES, after getting off winging with superlative pitching early in the season, are now moaning about a pitching problem of their own. Bob Porterfield, who was supposed to win a lot of games for them and came up with a sore arm, yesterday was dropped back to Newark and the Yanks have given up on him for this season.

Frank Shea has been a consistent failure all season, and Ed Lopat, despite his record of seven wins, has been belted freely and staggered to most of his victories. The Yankees have been fortunate that Relief Pitcher Joe Page is having one of his good years. Tommy Byrne, after an impressive start, has recontracted his habit of wildness, and the Yankees are solid in the box only when Vic Raschi is working.

Casey Stengel, like Boudreau, has been doing a juggling act, alternating his first, second and third basemen, and his outfielders. Phil Rizzuto and Tommy Henrich are the only fixtures on the Yankee team. It is the kind of a season that could be fraught with ulcers for both Stengel and Boudreau.

THE A's HAVE lately been getting the kind of pitching they were supposed to have, and are looking tough again. But for Connie Mack the irony is that when his pitchers began to respond, Outfielders Sam Chapman and Taft Wright stopped hitting. Elmer Valo is now his only outfielder who is a threat at the plate.

The Nats' pitching has gone suddenly sour for a fact. As of yesterday, none went the route in the last eight starts, a contrast to earlier in the season when they beat Cleveland five straight times, using only five pitchers. It's no coincidence, either, that the Nats' slump started on the night that Eddie Yost all but broke his leg and was carried off on a stretcher.

Deadest of the early-season surprises is, of course, the White Sox. They looked like a pretty fair ball team for six weeks, and then Gus Zernial broke his collar bone. The White Sox have been limping ever since, and it was unsurprising that Manager Jack Onslow and General Manager Frank Lane, both of them voluble gents, finally began yak-yaking at each other.

Masterson Socked, 8-5, By Tribe in Bosox Debut

Boston, June 15 (AP).—Former Nat Walter Masterson made his first pitching start for the Boston Red Sox here today, and ran into an 8-5 licking at the hands of the Cleveland Indians.

A paid crowd of 15,255 saw Masterson touched for 11 hits in eight innings, including a single and a homer by Rookie Shortstop Ray Boone.

Boone, who singled as the game's first batter and scored his team's first run, poled his first four-base blow as leadoff batter in the eighth inning.

A's Edge Tigers, 2-1 On Joost's 14th Homer

Philadelphia, June 15 (AP).—Eddie Joost's fourteenth home run of the season was the margin of victory as Dick Fowler recorded his fourth straight pitching victory in hurling Philadelphia to a 2-1 victory over Detroit tonight.

Joost's winning smash came off Southpaw Ted Gray's first pitch in the fifth inning. Philadelphia's other run resulted from two walks and Outfielder Don White's single in the third frame. Detroit's lone marker off Fowler was Vic Wertz's seventh round tripper of the season in the eighth frame. It was the first run off Philadelphia's right-hander after he had hurled 20 scoreless frames.

Lou Klein Signs With Cardinals

St. Louis, June 15 (AP).—Infielder Lou Klein became the first St. Louis Cardinal who jumped to the Mexican League to sign a contract.

Fred M. Saigh, president of the Redbirds, said Klein signed the contract in the club's office just before the Cardinal-Brooklyn Dodger game. Saigh said Klein signed for the same salary he had when he went to Mexico in 1946—$6500.

West Coast Cracks Down on Subsidizing

Portland, Oreg., June 15 (U.P.).—The Pact Coast Conference cracked down on illegal recruiting, subsidizing and proselyting of athletes today by slapping a total of $21,105 in fines on 8 of its 10-member schools.

Every school was adjudged guilty of some infraction of the West Coast's strict "purity code." The University of Washington received the stiffest penalty—$5500.

GIRL WHO SHOT WAITKUS—Pretty Ruth Ann Steinhagen, who seriously wounded Eddie Waitkus, Phils' star first baseman in a Chicago hotel room yesterday, undergoes a routine police test. Detective James Johnston applies paraffine to try to detect gunpowder traces. The 19-year-old bobby-soxer admitted the shooting and was identified by Waitkus

"do something exciting in my life."

Miss Steinhagen gave a statement relating details of the shooting. Later she was asked:

"Young lady, I hope you realize this is a serious offense."

"Oh," she replied, "it's just a simple shooting."

Ruth's mother, Mrs. Edith Steinhagen, said the girl had visited two psychiatrists who told her "nothing was wrong with her except that she should forget about Waitkus." She said the family would "stand by" the girl.

She said that when Waitkus was traded from the Cubs to the Phillies last winter, Ruth threatened to move to Philadelphia to be near him. She said Ruth was "so crazy" about Waitkus that she tried to learn to speak Lithuanian when she learned he was of Lithuanian extraction.

Waitkus, a leading National League first baseman and a war veteran who saw combat service in the Pacific, was lured to the girl's room in response to a note she sent him that she had something "important" to tell him. She also had pleaded with him on the telephone to come to her room.

Police Capt. John T. Warren said the girl told him she was "a fit case for a psychiatrist" and that she had undergone treatment for a nervous disorder.

"Girl friends from her north side rooming house said Ruth "had a real crush on Eddie," who played with the Chicago Cubs for three years before he was traded to the Phillies last winter.

"She wrote him lots of letters, said Joyce Stingley, 20, who roomed across the hall. "She phoned him whenever he was in town."

Her letters and phone calls went unanswered. Waitkus' sister, Mrs. Paul Kasperwicz, said in Boston today that Eddie was "a confirmed bachelor" who had no real romantic interest as far as she knew.

Ruth packed a suitcase, a .22 rifle and a paring knife with a 3½-inch blade and checked into the hotel Monday afternoon. She gave a bellboy $5 to deliver a note to Waitkus' room. The note said:

"Mr. Waitkus—It's extremely important that I see you as soon as possible.

"We're not acquainted, but I have something of importance to speak to you about. I think it would be to your advantage to let me explain it to you. As I'm leaving the hotel the day after tomorrow, I'd appreciate it greatly if you could see me as soon as possible. My name is Ruth Anne Burns, and I'm in Room 1297-A. I realize that this is a little out of the ordinary, but as I said, it's rather important. Please, come soon. I won't take up much of your time, I promise."

Waitkus telephoned Miss Steinhagen, but she said she insisted that he see her in person.

She later re-enacted the shooting for police and gave this version:

Waitkus knocked on her door. She put the paring knife in the pocket of her skirt and opened the door, intending to stab Waitkus as he entered. But he hurried past her, sat in a chair and asked her what she wanted.

She said, "I have a surprise for you," reached into the closet and grabbed the rifle.

"For heaven's sake, what's going on here?" Waitkus asked as he jumped from the chair.

"For two years you've bothered me. Now you're going to die," she answered. She shot him at close range. She said she started to reload to rifle to shoot herself, but then she "blacked out."

She notified hotel authorities that "I just shot a man." She surrendered to a hotel detective.

Waitkus regained consciousness about two hours later. Police said Miss Steinhagen did not answer when Waitkus asked her, "Why did you do it?"

"He Reminds Me of Everybody."

Ruth said she became a baseball and Waitkus fan in particular after watching him play in the first baseball game she ever saw, July 7, 1946. Waitkus then was with the Cubs.

"He reminds me of everybody, especially my father," she said.

Her hotel room was crowded with Cubs' mementoes, including clippings, rain checks and photos of Waitkus. Her third floor rooming house bedroom was a veritable Cub shrine, with photos of Waitkus in all sorts of poses.

The young woman talked freely—almost garrulously. She said she was sorry for Waitkus; hoped he wouldn't die, but if he could never play baseball again, she hoped he would die.

She declared she is looking forward to prison. She said she had been extremely nervous since she was in fifth grade and didn't participate in school activities because she felt she wasn't qualified.

"I feel more controlled now. I'm less nervous. I feel much easier since the shooting," she told reporters.

Waitkus Shooting Recalls 1932 Jurges Incident

Chicago, June 15 (AP).—The shooting of Eddie Waitkus, Philadelphia first baseman, by a teen-age girl yesterday reminded Chicago fans of the shooting of Bill Jurges, former popular Cub shortstop on July 6, 1932. Jurges, then 24, was shot three times in the left side, by a 21-year-old divorcee and show girl.

The girl, Violet Popovich Valli, said she and Jurges had been friends for about a year and that he had broken off the romance three weeks before the shooting.

Miss Valli was charged with assault with intent to kill, but Jurges refused to prosecute.

Berra, Brown Homer

Yanks Club Chisox, 9-4, Get 17th Win in 20 Home Games

New York, June 15 (AP).—Maintaining their hot home streak, the league-leading New York Yankees clubbed out a 9-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox today.

A Ladies Day crowd of 16,459, including 11,576 paid admissions, saw the Yanks hang up their second straight victory over the Sox and their seventeenth triumph in 20 contests at the Stadium.

Catcher Yogi Berra ran his consecutive hitting streak to 17 games with a three-run homer in the fifth inning. It was Yogi's only hit in five trips but he batted in a fourth marker with an infield out.

The catcher's three-run clout featured a four-run burst which gave the Yanks a 6-0 lead and just about iced the contest.

Despite the big lead, Allie Reynolds failed to go all the way although he was credited with his seventh victory against one defeat.

The big right-hander was wild as usual, giving up seven walks and throwing a wild pitch. He was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the seventh, leading 6-1, and Reliefer Joe Page, just as wild, staggered through to the finish.

Page was reached for a run in the eighth and two in ninth. He fanned three and walked four.

Two of the 12 Yankee hits off Randy Gumpert and Al Gettel were contributed by Bobby Brown, who hit a homer and single.

Griffs Score 5 in First, Back Ray With 15 Hits

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Ray Scarborough, unable to last out a game for a month, turned in a novel pitching chore for the Nats last night—a fancy two-hitter that lifted Washington to a 9-0 victory over the Browns.

Working in the comparative privacy of the smallest night crowd of the season in Griffith Stadium, a mere 7877 of the faithful, Scarborough put an emphatic stop to that nonsense of three straight defeats for the Nats.

He didn't give up any kind of a hit until Dick Kokos whacked a two-bagger off the right field wall with one out in the fifth, and he didn't yield a second hit until Pinch Hitter Paul Lehner opened the Browns' ninth with a single.

The Browns didn't get to first base against Scarborough until Kokos punctured his visions of no-hit fame, and he walked only one man all evening. All of a sudden, the sturdy right hander last night came up with a buzzing fast ball to buttress his sharp curve.

Kennedy Pounded

The Nats gave him a 5-0 lead to work with right off the bat, and what Scarborough gave them was super-protection. Not only was he discombooberating the Browns with his pitching, but until the ninth inning they weren't even out-hitting Scarborough who in the sixth matched Kokos' two-bagger with one of his own.

Manager Zach Taylor of the Browns gambled on rookie southpaw Bill Kennedy as his starting pitcher, and he got only one man out in that first inning. The first four men he faced saluted him with hits. Karl Drews finished up for the Browns and the Nats ultimately sprayed 15 hits over the premises.

The Nats wrapped it up with a six-hit attack in that first inning. Sherry Robertson opened it with a single to right, dashed to second on Stewart's safe bunt, and raced to third when Dillinger threw wild on the play. Sam Mele banged home the first run with a single to center.

Robertson Prominent

Vollmer followed with the Nats' fourth straight hit, a single to center, that scored Stewart. Kennedy finally got a man out—Eddie Robinson, who lined a fiery drive into Priddy's mitt. And then he got himself out—of the ball game—by pitching a two-bagger to Kozar whose smash past Dillinger scored Mele. Dente greeted Drews with an infield single for the fourth run and the fifth scored on Evans' infield out.

The farther it went the happier it was for the Nats. Mele and Vollmer led off with singles in the fifth, and upped the Nats' lead to 6-0. In the sixth, Evans singled, Scarborough doubled and Robertson singled and they had two more runs.

In the eighth, Dente and Evans opened up with singles and Robertson's fly to Spence improved the Nats' lead to 9-0, the final score, which the Browns could have achieved just as easily by not showing up.

IN SHORT — The Browns dipped into their second-flight pitchers for a man to start last night's game. Rookie Kennedy had failed to last in four previous attempts, yet got the assignment . . .

The rich purple hues of Eddie Yost's discolored right leg, with its torn muscles, form a point of interest in the Nats' dressing room . . . Sherry Robertson made one of the season's good plays to grab Sievers' grounder far behind third base and threw out the fleet Brownie in the fifth inning . . . The Browns and Nats will be back at it again tonight with Right-handers Red Embree and Sid Hudson on the firing line.

Cerdan, Jake Fight Off Until Tonight

By Jack Hand

Detroit, June 15 (AP).—Rain forced a 24-hour postponement of tnight's scheduled middleweight title bout between Champion Marcel Cerdan and Jake La Motta, the persistent challenger from New York's Bronx. The 15-round bout has been rescheduled for Briggs Stadium tomorrow night.

Showers that brought relief to a sweltering city began to fall while the two fighters were being weighed in at Olympia Stadium. They continued all afternoon. Finally the promoters gave in and announced the delay.

Early estimates of a $300,000 gate now have shrunk to $200,000 tops and about 18,000 fans. Much depends on the gate sale of the cheaper tickets. There will be no radio or television broadcasts.

La Motta, finally getting a title shot after years of being called "the fellow the champs duck," just made the weight at 159½, only eight ounces under the class limit.

There was no question about Marcel making the weight. He did it easy at 158 pounds, a half pound less than his weight last September, the night he won the crown by clubbing Tony Zale into submission.

After a three-hour closed session in the steaming office of the Boxing Commission, it was ruled that there shall be no new weigh-in tomorrow, in accordance with NBA rules. If it is put off for a second time, both boys will have to make 160 pounds again.

Longman, Cerdan's Parisian manager, was much upset by the commission verdict.

"If a man wants to get our title," said Longman, "let him be a middleweight. I insist on fighting middleweights if the title is at stake. I am a foreigner in a strange land but I cannot understand why Cerdan should have to fight a light heavyweight."

Joey La Motta, who won his point in the official decision, said, "Jake probably won't weigh any more than he did today." Best guess, however, was that the challanger probably would pick up 4 or 5 pounds. Whether that will help Jake's fighting is problematical.

There was no early switch in the odds which still quoted Cerdan as a 5 to 8 favorite. It may go down to 5 by 7 by ring time.

Reds Trade Sauer For Cubs' Walker

Cincinnati, June 15 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds tonight traded Outfielders Hank Sauer and Frankie Baumholtz to the Chicago Cubs for Outfielders Harry Walker and Harry (Peanuts) Lowrey.

President Warren C. Giles said it was a straight trade with no cash involved.

None of the four have enjoyed particularly fruitful seasons at bat this season. In the latest averages Walker was batting .281; Lowrey, .277; Sauer, .243, and Baumholtz, .246.

Waitkus' Attacker Gives Play-By-Play

Chicago, June 15 (AP).—Following are excerpts of an oral statement which Police Capt. John Warren said Ruth Steinhagen made after the shooting of Eddie Waitkus, Phillies' first baseman, today:

Q. You registered in the hotel on Monday, the 13th of June? A. Yes.

Did you go to the ballgame the next day? A. That was the 14th, yesterday. Yes I did, but I only stayed until the seventh inning.

Q. Where did you sit? A. First base.

Q. You always sit behind first base? A. Every time Waitkus was there, yes sir.

Q. Do you know Waitkus? A. No.

Q. Had you ever met him before? A. Not before tonight (Tuesday).

Q. Have you ever corresponded with him? A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask him for his autograph? A. No.

Q. You have had absolutely no connection with Mr. Waitkus before the 14th of June, 1949? A. Before I shot him, no connection whatever.

Q. Now you came to the Edgewater Beach Hotel after the ball game, did you? A. Yes, I did. I ordered some drinks.

Q. Do you remember what those drinks were? A. Yes, daiquiri and two whisky sours.

Q. Did you order them all at once or separate? A. All at once.

Q. What happened then? A. Well, I figured if he was not going to come—and anyway it is not the thing to do going around shooting people.

Q. This is the first time you told me about shooting people. When did you first decide that? A. Two years ago. That was when I first saw him, 1947.

Q. Where were you when you first saw him? A. The ball game.

Q. Why did you decide to kill him at that time? Do you remember? A. I didn't decide to kill. Whatever I am in the mood for, I will eventually do.

Q. Did you have a rifle in the room? A. Yes, in the closet.

Q. Did you have anything else with you when you checked into the hotel? A. You mean in the way of arms or anything?

Q. Yes. A. A little kitchen knife.

Q. Why did you buy that? To use in the kitchen? A. No, hardly. I decided to use that on Waitkus and then the gun on myself.

Eddie Holds Wide Lead For All-Star Game

Chicago, June 15.—Ironically, Ed Waitkus holds a commanding lead in the All-Star balloting. The Philadelphia first baseman, victim of a tragic shooting here, polled 19,403 of the votes announced today. His nearest rival, Cincinnati's Ted Klusbewski, has 14,182.

Q. Now, let's go back to about 9:30 in the hotel, you are waiting in the room for Waitkus. Did anything happen between then and the time he arrived? A. Yes, about 9:30 I decided I can't do anything like this. I decided I would tell him I have the gun here and the knife and I will show it to him and tell him I wanted to make an attempt on his life and let him call the police.

Q. Why would you do that? A. If I just went back to what I was doing before, a typist, I didn't want to live like that.

Q. You wanted some thrills and excitement? A. Maybe that was it.

Q. Have you ever planned to kill yourself. A. Yes, I had a number of times.

Q. What happened after he arrived. A. I don't know.

Q. Where were you standing when Waitkus came to the room? A. I planned on stabbing him with the knife.

Q. Tell me what you did. A. When he opened the door he walked in so suddenly he walked into the room.

Q. Did he say anything to you? A. He said something but I was so excited at that moment that I don't know. He sat in a chair, and I said, wait a minute, I was going to stab him.

Q. Eddie was sitting in the chair and you went to the closet? A. Yes, I said I have a surprise for you, and I got the gun out of the closet and I told him to get up and move toward the window, and he was shocked and surprised.

Q. What did you do then? A. I said to him, for two years you have been bothering me because I kept getting that idea back and back again, and he said I don't understand, what in the world goes here, and before he had a chance to say anything else I shot him. He slumped to the floor and he said, Oh Baby, what did you do that for, something to that effect.

Heintzelman, Borowy Win Five-Hitters

Chicago, June 15 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies, shocked by the shooting of Eddie Waitkus, nevertheless carried on today to sweep a double bill with the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 1 and 3 to 0, before a crowd of 18,809.

Waitkus was shot and wounded by a girl fan in a hotel room early today. Dick Sisler replaced him today and collected three of the eight hits off Bob Rush and Emil Kush in the opener. In the nightcap he went hitless.

Ken Heintzelman held the Cubs to five hits in the curtain raiser for his seventh victory. In the second tilt, Hank Borowy also tossed a five-hitter, though he needed a ninth-inning lift from Robin Roberts when Hank Edwards rapped a double for his third hit and Andy Pafko singled.

Roberts induced Frankie Gustine to ground into a double play to preserve Borowy's sixth victory.

Fisherman's Angle

You Have Only 4 Weeks Left To Catch Trout Hereabouts

By Ralph Murdock
Post Reporter

FRESH WATER trout fishing ends in Maryland and West Virginia July 15. In other words two-thirds of the official season are gone and you have only four weeks in which to plan your final tussles with these gamesters.

Murdock

The trout might not be quite as plentiful as they were when the season first opened but the ones you catch in the next thirty days will have their diplomas with them because they have been tempted with every type of fly and lure imaginable and have acquired unadulterated "fish sense." It will take a clever angler to entice them. Large fish and better sport should be realized during the final semester.

Don't let the waning trout season get you down because the large and small mouth bass season opens in Maryland July 1 to furnish gobs of thrills. Eight Maryland counties have been enjoying the sport since June 1. Some excellent catches have been made on the Eastern Shore where the anglers were permitted to get the early start.

WEST VIRGINIA opens its ponds and streams to the fishermen June 8 and Virginia's season gets under way June 20.

HERE'S PROOF that you don't need a big boat to catch a big fish. Bos'n Lee S. Roe, in charge of the Diamond Lightship, anchored 14 miles off Cape Hatteras, noticed swarms of dolphin around the lightship. He lowered a small boat and proceeded to troll. In a jiffy he hooked a 35-pound dolphin and landed it after an extended battle. It was the largest dolphin reported this season.

Sighting of tuna fish off the southern coast of New Jersey is the first indication that the bluefins will show up in the North Atlantic waters this season. Vast schools of mackerel which linger off shore should bring the tuna within reach of the charter boatmen soon, for mackerel forms a large share of the tuna's favorite diet in this area.

Eight Washingtonians, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Razer, Mr. and Mrs. Danny Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. George McCarty, Milton Clark, and Jerry Jones and a guest from Indiana, Lou Caulson, had a very successful fishing trip at Lewes, Del. They landed 196 trout. Fresh squid was used for bait. They fished from the Thelma Dale, and Capt. Harry Parsons was skipper. Against their wishes, the six men on the trip admitted that the three housewives caught the most fish.

Fishing at Chincoteague with Capt. C. Mirrett, seven local fishermen caught 414 porgies and sea bass. They were Tom Eaton, C. S. Underwood, Alvin Shockey, Harry Buckley, E. E. Clark, John Scholts and Earl Merril; all are employed at the Naval Gun Factory. They said that practically all of the boats in the area of Chincoteague had a good day.

Weekend Suggestions: Where they are Biting

ROCKFISH — Eastern Bay near Bloody Point Lighthouse remains the best bet. Although strong southeasters have been blowing for five days, big catches of large rock were recorded. Boats available from North Beach to Annapolis. Chumming is still the best method.

HARDHEADS — Normal catches of 20 to 50 reported from Plum Point to Bloody Point on shrimp drifting on slow moving tides during the day and still fishing late in the evening. Majority are large size.

CRAPPIE—The Upper Patuxent has never been clearer. Small boats can be procured at Hills Bridge, Pig Point and Sunderlands Landing. Minnows furnished.

GW High Track Coach Gets Same Job at N. C. State

Many of Fitzgibbon's Virginia schoolboy champions will probably follow him to Raleigh, among them Bobby Jones the very promising distance runner.

In his four years as track coach of the Alexandria school, Fitz's teams won three State indoor championships and three North Carolina University Invitational titles.

He's already gained a good reputation as a trainer, having served in that capacity with the Universities of Wisconsin and Maryland, and on spot jobs with the Redskins. He specializes in repairing shoulder separations.

AT CHARLES TOWN

DEAR FOLKS:

Palmer Sowers, former Washingtonian and now owner-trainer, isn't too proud to work. He has been grooming a 17-year-old Brooklyn youngster, Richard lawless, as a jockey. The boy is ambitious as well as industrious and, after working horses in the morning, has the job of changing the numbers at the finish line, keeping the photo-finish mirror clean and lowering the flag in the infield after the program. On the Tuesday card, young Lawless made his saddle debut, However, somebody had to take over his afternoon work. Sowers agreed to do it and came in for a lot of kidding, someone yelling, 'is the racket that bad?" Lawless failed to get in the money with Green Garden. However, Powers had another horse, rugged, and this one won under the riding of Freddie Kratz.

Rendova Springs $18.20 Surprise in Charles Town Feature

Favored Doe Head Runs Out

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 15. Under a strong ride by Jockey Freddie Kratz, of Baltimore, Rendova, a 7-year old mare was the driving winner of the Endurance Purse, featuring the mid-week program. The victory came as a mild surprise for the daughter of Claptrap led six fair routers into the wire after a mile and a quarter trip.

Beaten a length was E. W. Price jr's. Bonziah Seniah. A head farther back came Mrs. L. E. Everhart's Radio Gunner to be third four lengths in front of Wayne Kendrick's Doe Head, the even money favorite seeking his third straight victory. Three others competed.

Rendova, a dull performer last time out at a shorter distance but a winner when last she went a mile and a quarter, was clocked in 2:10 4/5. The mare paid an $18.20 mutuel.

Doe Head, in charge of Jockey Buddy Root, went to the front early with Radio Gunner second and Rendova third. Entering the back stretch, Radio Gunner moved up on even terms with the pacemaker. However, Rendova also rallied and went between the pair to get to the front. From that point to the wire Kratz kept driving.

Bonziah Seniah, far back early, came wide for racing room and closed with good energy to take the place from Radio Gunner. Doe Head, after being displaced began to tire and was a distant fourth.

Lenczyk Wins In Ohio Golf

The 21-year-old defending champion from Hartford, Conn., defeated Carol Clark of Wyoming, Ohio, a Miami (Ohio) University junior, 5 and 4, in today's quarterfinals.

But another former titleholder, 22-year-old Shirley Spork of Detroit, fell by the side of the tournament road. Distance hitter Pauline Frey of Canton, Ohio, an Ohio State University junior, toppled the 1947 champion, 5 and 4.

Judy Baker of Lima, Ohio, a sun-tanned little sophomore from Rollins College, captured the right to tackle the defending champion in the upper-bracket semifinals tomorrow with a 4-and-3 margin over Jeanie Dobbin of St. Louis, an 18-year-old University of Miami (Fla.) freshman.

Last year's runner-up, Marilynn Smith of the University of Kansas, ran into trouble on the out nine against Polly Martin, University of New Mexico, but regained her game sufficiently to come up with a 4-and-3 win. Miss Smith was two down at the turn, principally because of straying wood shots.

Mulloy Ousts Fannin

2000 in Gun Factory To Get Dismissals Within Two Weeks

About 2000 employes in the Naval Gun Factory here will be given 30-day discharge notices in the next two weeks. The wholesale lay-off may be as much as 22 per cent of the factory's 10,500 workers.

Rear Admiral F. G. Fahrion, factory superintendent, yesterday gave employe representatives details of the pending shakedown. He stressed that the lay-off plans were based on estimated future appropriations by Congress and that they were subject to change.

Regular status employes who are nonveterans and who have as much as 15 and 20 years of service are likely to be among those to be fired. Upward of 1200 so-called "permanent" status nonveterans will have their jobs abolished. Veterans are given preference during lay-offs.

At the factory are 800 temporary and war-service employes. Only a handful of these—those in specialized jobs that can't be filled by status employes—will be retained. Between 200 and 300 temporary and war-service people already have been given discharge notices on Civil Service orders.

The cancellation of plans to build a super Navy aircraft carrier and a reduction of the Navy budget already has forced the firings of 8000 shipyard employes. Navy hopes to make all of the lay-offs it must make for the 1950 fiscal year before July 1. However, the Senate still hasn't acted on its 1950 budget and the economy bloc hopes to force another cut in it.

REVENUE: The House and the Senate are battling over how many new employes the Internal Revenue Bureau should have for the 1950 fiscal year that begins on July 1.

Originally the House approved funds for 1500 new workers. The Senate okayed 7000, the number asked by the President. Senate-House conferees haven't been able to reach a compromise. The House managers agreed to go to 2500. The Senate insisted on 7000.

During House debate yesterday, Majority Leader McCormack pleaded with the conferees to accept the Senate figure. He was joined by Cooper (D., Tenn.), Dingell (R., Mich.), and others who said it was "senseless paper economy" to cut the agency that brought in the cash.

Cooper estimated the salary cost of the 7000 employes at 12 million dollars annually and he said they could bring in an additional half billion in revenue.

Gary (D., Va.), chairman of the House conferees, argued that it wasn't possible for Revenue to hire 7000 well-qualified people. He said any expansion should be made gradually.

He was supported by Canfield (R., N. J.), who read from a report which charged Revenue with using prewar cumbersome, and unsound procedures and office operations. Canfield insisted that Revenue wouldn't need new workers if it effectively used those it now has.

PAYLESS PAYDAYS: A step was taken yesterday toward ending them—temporarily at least—for Federal workers.

An agreement was reached by Senate-House conferees on most provisions in the second deficiency bill and the report was approved by the House. The Senate is slated to act on it today.

If the report is approved and sent to the White House, payless paydays for several hundred thousand employes next week will be avoided. Between 5000 and 8000 employes already have missed paydays and Federal agencies have been forced to delay paying thousands of bills because of the deficiency tie-up.

VETERANS: The House Civil Service Committee yesterday approved a bill to give sizable salary boosts to an estimated 90,000 veterans who entered the postal service after their military service. The bill would: (1) give them a flat $400 annual wage boost if they were in the armed forces on July 1, 1945 or on any previous date, and (2) to give them an additional $100 increase for every year they spent in the military. The Administration opposes the bill. The committee rejected by a 10-to-9 vote an amendment by Rees (R, Kans.) to apply the bill to all veterans in Government.

House Wants Commission To Decide on White House

Compromise Plan Would Let Group Choose Between Repairs, Rebuilding

The House yesterday tossed the decision of how the White House should be repaired into the lap of the six-man Commission on Renovation of the Executive Mansion.

In a compromise proposal, the House agreed unanimously to appropriate two million dollars now to do something about the rickety old White House and give contract authority for an additional $3,400,000.

The new House plan provides that the White House Commission would decide whether the mansion should be repaired, preserving its outer shell, or be razed and rebuilt.

The House, led by Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) of its Appropriations Committee, previously has insisted that no White House money shall be voted unless a new executive mansion is started from scratch.

The White House item has deadlocked the second deficiency supply bill, as it did the first deficiency bill last month. The Senate, which has held out for restoring the present structure, now must act on the House compromise proposal.

The White House Commission is believed to be weighted in favor of preserving the White House in its present form.

Senate Kills Plan for New Office Bldg.

A 52-to-29 Senate vote yesterday squelched plans for an immediate start on a new 20-million-dollar Senate Office Building.

But proponents of the project indicated another effort may be made this session to get money for starting a new building on a less expensive scale.

The vote killed the proposal of Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) to write nine million dollars into the legislative appropriation bill to start the building.

Ellender Protests Project

Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) had taken the lead in blocking the proposed building funds. He had protested the project as an unneeded luxury.

Senators Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.) and Theodore F. Green (D., R. I.) backed Bridges' appeal for the funds.

Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) questioned it, saying he had not seen the plans. Bridges asked him if he had seen the plans for the new United Nations building before voting for a 65-million-dollar loan for that project. Flanders said he had not, and if he had seen the exterior design, he wouldn't have voted for the loan. He said it was the "most God-awful piece of architecture ever perpetrated."

After the vote, Senator Chavez, chairman both of the Senate Office Building Commission and the Senate Public Works Committee, said the plan now is to go ahead with clearing of the building site—on 1st between B and C sts. ne.

He said Capitol Architect David Lynn will be consulted about the possibility of more inexpensive plans for the building, and "we may make another effort this session to get money to start in a deficiency bill."

D. C. Reports First Case of Tick Fever

The District's first case of tick fever this season, a lad who picnicked in neighboring Virginia, was reported yesterday to the District Health Department.

At the same time, it was disclosed, the Health Department is routinely advising local residents that, with few exceptions, they need not bother getting preventive "shots" for the once-dread disease.

The District's first seasonal victim was identified as an 8-year-old boy of the 3500 block of Clay st. ne. Now under treatment by a private physician, he was reportedly bitten by an infected tick on June 5 while on a picnic in Loudoun County, Va.

Though his case marked the District's first, a fifth county case was reported yesterday to Prince Georges County health authorities. The case was identified as a six-year-old Bladensburg girl, bitten last Sunday at a neighborhood play area. Her physician said he is treating her with aureomycin, one of the two new antibiotics which licks the high-fever malady.

The new drugs, aureomycin and chloromycetin, and the mathematically small chance of being bitten by an infected tick within the limits of the District were advanced by health authorities as the main reasons why preventive inoculations are no longer necessary.

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

A shortage of qualified elementary teachers that has plagued District schools since the war years will be present again when school convenes in September.

During the school year ending today nearly a third of the 860 elementary teaching positions in white schools have been held by temporary teachers. Indications are that the number will be just as great next term.

Temporary teachers either do not qualify for permanent jobs because of training, because they are over the age limit of 45, or do not wish to take an examination required for appointment.

Today, Wilson Teachers College, main provider of white elementary teachers for District schools, will graduate 32 young women trained for the elementary field. Twenty-nine have indicated they want to teach in the District.

Will Only Fill Gaps

Associate Schools Superintendent Carl F. Hansen estimates that these students will take care of only the retirements and vacancies that will occur in the permanent staff over the summer months.

The one bright spot in the picture, as seen by Dr. Hansen, is that school officials this year can be more selective in picking temporary teachers. The number interested in part-time jobs in the elementary field has increased, and as a whole, these teachers are better qualified than in previous years.

The current shortage of teachers is acute only in the elementary field and in the white schools.

More High School Teachers

The supply of junior and senior high school teachers rapidly is reaching demand. The Negro schools have a surplus of qualified teacher candidates at all levels. At present, more than a hundred Negro elementary teachers are waiting for vacancies.

Low salaries still are listed by school officials as the main reason why there are not sufficient teachers to meet the demand.

Many jobs in Government and business not requiring four years of college pay more than the $2500 offered to entering teachers.

Inadequate facilities for the training of teachers in the District also is a factor.

Wilson Teachers College is housed in a dingy structure built 35 years ago as a normal school for girls. Planned to accommodate 300 students on a two-year program, it now has an enrollment of 450 attending four years.

The school lacks a gymnasium, and its sports field is the size of an elementary school playground. Competitive sports are all but impossible.

The survey of District schools conducted by Dr. George D. Strayer found that the college lacks well-organized departments. It has no facilities for specialization or graduate study.

Dr. Strayer recommended new plants and a budget increase of from 300 to 400 per cent for both Wilson and Miner Teacher's College, which trains Negro Teachers.

Contributing to the shortage of elementary teachers also is the nature of the job and what school officials say is a lack of parental appreciation of the elementary teacher.

Miss Anna Holberg, professor of education at Wilson, said that the elementary teacher cannot do a job that is satisfactory either to herself or to parents.

What Is Expected

The elementary teacher is expected to be an expert in child development, health and nutrition. She must be well versed in teaching the fundamentals, social and natural sciences, music, art and psysical education.

With all the new duties added to the burden of educating children, the elementary teacher still is working under the same conditions of 25 to 30 years ago.

She has a classroom of 30 or 40 children. She is expected to use modern scientific methods of instruction, but is not given the visual and auditory aides with which to do the job.

That teachers go into the elementary field at all is because it is the most rewarding and inspiring activity that can be carried on, Miss Holberg believes. The teacher's reward is in seeing individual children grow.

'Danny Boy' Lawyer Charges Entrapment in Gaming Raid

A motion to dismiss a gambling indictment against Walter C. Plummer, 6228 North Dakota ave. nw., was filed in District Court yesterday, with references to fragrant air, sweet warbling of birds and "Paddy's Day."

Plummer, a waiter at Hammel's Restaurant, 416 10th st. nw., and one of 36 indicted by the special grand jury investigating gambling, is charged with setting up a gaming table for the purpose of betting on horse races.

His lawyer, T. Emmett McKenzie, charges that Plummer was entrapped into "betting on the sport of kings" by Wilfred J. Barrett, Government undercover agent, on March 17, 1949.

"On Paddy's Day," McKenzie said in his motion, "this informer took a table at Hammel's served by a poor lad named, of all things, Dan, and then and there proceeded to lure poor Danny boy himself into becoming the informer's agent in his premeditated illegal desire."

"To view the matter from its lighter aspect," the motion continued, "it was spring and of course, St. Patrick's Day."

"Doubtless the air was redolent with the fragrance of early blooms and the birds, happy to be in such a wonderful locale on such a remarkable day, contributed through their sweet warbling to the toxic effect of the setting."

McKenzie said that the bill of particulars in Plummer's indictment charges only that Plummer arranged for a third person, identified as "Doc," to bet on a horse race for Barrett.

"Dan got nothing but tricked," the motion said.

NCHA to Evict $5000 Families From Public Housing Quarters

Twenty families with incomes of more than $5000 a year soon will receive notices to move from the low-rent public housing quarters they now occupy.

The eviction notices will be sent out shortly by the National Capital Housing Authority, a spokesman said yesterday.

NCHA wants to "graduate" those tenants who now are making more than the $3000 limit supposed to be in force for those living in the projects. Due to the housing shortage plus rising incomes and cost of living as well, however, the limit has been in abeyance. It is unlikely, NCHA said, that anyone under the $4000 income figure will be "graduated" at present. The $4000-to-$5000 group is next in line for "graduation."

Those who must find new homes are now scattered in many of the NCHA projects and include both white and Negro families.

Unaffected by the new action are tenants in wartime-built temporary housing. Many of these units are due to be torn down, some of them this year, because of their flimsy construction. As vacancies occur, the apartments are left empty but no one is being forced to move.

The backlog of applications for low-cost housing units under NCHA control is so great there is no hope for such persons as the woman with seven children who was brought into court for failure to leave a condemned home.

The woman said she could find no other place to live and an assistant corporation counsel said he had been unable to get any welfare agency to find the family another home.

An NCHA official pointed out there already are more than 17,000 housing applications on file. He said that priority is given persons displaced by Government agencies but that there are too many of them to find quarters for all.

Dive Proves Fatal To Bethesda Man

Paul Clatterbuck, 20-year-old bakery employe of Bethesda, Md., died Tuesday in Emergency Hospital, Annapolis, of a broken neck received in a shallow-water dive.

The hospital reported the youth died almost three days to the hour after leaping into the water at Beverley Beach. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph B. Clatterbuck of 4601 W. Virginia avenue, of Bethesda.

Board Ready To Act on New Racial Policy

The District Recreation Board is ready today for the first time to issue permits for interracial meetings in either its own buildings or in public school structures.

The board on Tuesday voted unanimously to throw open the buildings to nonsegregated meetings, a historic step in the changing pattern of segregation in Washington.

Permits will be issued on an individual basis by the board's superintendent, Milo F. Christiansen. If there is any request Christiansen thinks should be denied as "not consistent with the department's program," he is under instruction to present it to the full board for approval or disapproval.

Meanwhile, the Interior Department had nothing to say about the defeat of moves to end segregation in all Recreation Board facilities and activities. Such a motion, offered by Interior's representative, was defeated by a 5-to-2 vote at Tuesday's meeting.

Interior officials, including Secretary J. A. Krug, have said they would not turn over any of their local recreation facilities to the board unless the board banned segregation not only in the particular facilities but in all its activities.

Interior spokesmen also have broadly hinted they might move to take back certain areas now handed over to the local board for operation if they are not operated on a nonsegregated basis.

Libel Action Against Eugene Meyer Quashed

A $100,000 libel suit against Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, was dismissed yesterday in District Court. The action had been brought by Johnnie F. Slaughter, 40, as a result of newspaper article reporting a trial in which he was defendant.

In dismissing the suit, Judge Matthew F. McGuire ruled that Meyer was not responsible for the articles. Meyer was represented by Spencer Gordon, attorney.

Student Pilot Rejected by Girl Shoots Self to Death in Auto

A 20-year-old student pilot shot himself to death yesterday in a one-man Russian roulette game before the eyes of his 16-year-old girl friend, who had just spurned his offer of marriage.

The victim was John R. Transue, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Transue, 3919 McKinley st. nw. He arrived in town from Miami early yesterday morning.

The object of his affections was June Marie Joy, a Woodrow Wilson High School junior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen E. Joy, 3412 Quesada st. nw.

The fatal shooting occurred shortly after noon in the front seat of Transue's new car, parked in an isolated spot known as Gobblers Knob, across River rd. from the Congressional Country Club near Bethesda, Md.

Montgomery County Coroner Dr. Frank J. Broschart last night issued a verdict of accidental death.

Police said Transue, a Woodrow Wilson graduate, picked up his childhood sweetheart at the school, three hours before school let out for the summer. He urged the young girl to marry him. She refused, saying she was too young to marry.

They drove to Gobblers Knob and Transue repeated his questions, until he was convinced that June was not changing her mind.

The girl told police Transue then took a special .38-caliber revolver from the glove compartment, emptied the six chambers of all but one bullet, and spun the cylinder.

Trembling, the girl said, she asked: "Is that for me?" Transue replied quietly: "You never know."

Then he placed the revolver behind his right ear, pulled the trigger, and a soft-nosed "dum-dum" bullet tore through his brain, piercing the steel top of the car.

On the front seat of the car, was the girl's final report card and a letter that she had written him to Miami, telling him of looking forward excitedly to wearing a pink dress for their first date.

In the trunk of Transue's car, police said, they found two .22-caliber rifles and a tool kit full of ammunition. Two books, one describing the rhythm method of birth control and one entitled "The Birth of a Baby," were also found in the back seat.

The coroner said he found no evidence Transue intended to kill himself, which intent, he said, would be necessary for a verdict of suicide.

Unusual Form Of Impetigo Fatal To Infant Here

Death of an 18-day-old infant from an unusual form of impetigo was reported yesterday to the District Health Department. The ailment, a highly infectious skin rash, generally is considered more irritating than dangerous.

The victim was identified as Lorraine M. Beach, of 2417 18th st. nw. Cause of death was recorded as Bullous impetigo.

House Again Rejects Fund For Sesqui Celebration

McGrath May Seek To Have $2 Million Advanced For Fete From D. C. Funds

Chances of a Federal appropriation to underwrite the sesquicentennial celebration appeared very slim last night.

The House voted for the second time yesterday to deny the two million dollar sesqui item which the Senate has twice approved recently.

But Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) last night disclosed he may seek to have the same lump sum for the observance appropriated from the pending District appropriations bill.

The Senator said he believed all, if not more, of the two-million-dollar fund would be returned to the District treasury through sales tax levies on hotel rooms, meals and novelties purchased at the "Freedom Fair."

"The town will be filled with visitors who must pay a sales tax on most things they buy," said McGrath. "I'm sure the running of the sesquicentennial will produce an amount approaching two million dollars, or even more."

He said he would sound out the Commissioners on his proposal, and may offer an amendment to the District supply bill, directing that the sum be advanced for the celebration.

The sesqui item was one of two major items in dispute in the second deficiency appropriation bill. The Senate is expected to consider the conference report on the measure today.

McGrath said he would not insist again that the sesqui fund be put both into the bill since it also carries payroll money for several agencies which he did not want to delay.

100 Arlington Teachers Hit Early Return

More than 100 Arlington County teachers last night protested an Arlington School Board decision to call them back from summer vacations five days early to attend, without pay, a "teachers' workshop."

The group, at a meeting at Washington and Lee High School, voted a resolution, to be presented to the School Board, urging it to reconsider its plan. The resolution asked reopening of school September 6 "at the earliest" with no increase in the length of the school year.

The plan calls for the teachers to meet early to study and discuss educational methods.

Dr. Barnard Joy, chairman of the School Board, was at the meeting. Parrying questions and criticism, Dr. Joy said that Arlington demanded constant improvement in the caliber of education and said the School Board felt the "teachers' workshop" would be conducive to "professional growth."

The teachers based their opposition to the workshop plan on the following grounds: (1) They already had made vacation plans; (2) many supplement salaries with summer jobs; (3) they already have been offered contracts calling for nine and one half months' work, while the new plan is tantamount to nine and three fourths months' work; and (4) the added time put in at the "workshop" would represent a nullification of a wage raise granted them some time ago.

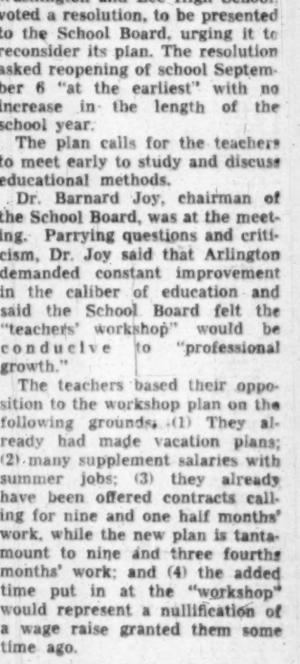
The first all-Montgomery County meeting of the Future Teachers of America will be held at the Richard Montgomery High School Gymnasium in Rockville at 8 p. m. today. Dr. Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent, and Dr. Wilbur Devilbiss, State supervisor of high schools, will speak.



Area News in Brief

Motorman Halts To Aid Pedestrian

He was probably very old, and he moved slowly, and the swiftly moving traffic on Wisconsin ave. brushed dangerously close to him.

John Crosby, 23-year-old streetcar motorman, was first to see his plight.

The light had blinked green on R st. and Crosby had started his streetcar rolling over the hill toward Friendship Heights when he saw what was happening.

"He was trying to cross Wisconsin ave. but the cars were speeding by," said Crosby. "He moved back and forth trying to avoid being struck."

Crosby stopped his streetcar and opened the doors. Motor vehicles had to obey the law and they stopped behind the streetcar. With the flow of traffic halted, Crosby helped the unfortunate to the curb.

"He was a pretty big turtle, too," said Crosby later, "at least 3 or 4 inches across."

Man Held as Gambler

Two members of the vice squad were cruising the city yesterday at about 2 p. m. looking for gambling activities. In the 1300 block of Corcoran st. nw., they stopped Robert Knight, 26.

Knight had some books in his pockets. They looked like numbers books. They WERE numbers books, the detectives said later.

Knight, who lives at 1325 Corcoran st. nw., was charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips. He was released in $1500 bond and will appear in Municipal Court today.

Boy, 8, Falls 35 Feet

George W. Wilson, 8, was in serious condition at Emergency Hospital last night after tumbling 35 feet from the roof of the St. John's Orphanage, 1922 F st. nw.

Police said the boy, a ward of the orphanage, was playing on the roof about 6 p. m. He apparently had climbed a 10-foot fence to reach the edge of the roof, then had fallen to the rear yard.

Time Means Money

Some prices are falling but not the price of time, apparently. The Western Union Telegraph Co. has asked the District Public Utilities Commission to authorize an increase of 25 cents a month in the rental charges for 1296 electric clocks in Washington, it was revealed yesterday.

Morals Defendant Fined

George William Humphrey, 47, a house painter, was fined $100 yesterday in Municipal Court for drunken driving. Humphrey, who lives at 1212 Myrtle ave., Takoma Park, Md., was arrested last May shortly after an 8-year-old girl complained that Humphrey had taken indecent liberties with her.

An investigation disclosed that Humphrey's car had been in collision with another on the same day. He has been held for grand jury action on the morals charge.

Tax Aid Pledged

'Substantial' Sum

Garretts Win Out-of-Court Settlement

A settlement was agreed to yesterday in the District Court suit brought over the fractured hip of Mrs. Finis J. Garrett, wife of the chief judge of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals.

Trial of the suit, in which Judge and Mrs. Garrett sought $200,000 damages, had been going on for five days when lawyers in the case announced the settlement.

Attorney Austin F. Canfield, attorney for the Garretts, said the parties had agreed not to announce the amount of the settlement. Canfield described it as "substantial," however.

Defendants in the case were Doctors Hospital and Dr. Robert H. Groh, psychoneurologist. Mrs. Garrett broke her hip and said she was permanently bedridden after she fell in the hospital March 1, 1947. She had undergone the third of a series of "electric-shock" treatments for melancholia when she fell.

Miss May P. Bradshaw is escorted through an arch of swords by High School Cadet Maj. Richard Norton last night in Roosevelt gym

Miss May P. Bradshaw, teacher and principal in District schools for 48 years, last night received homage from students, fellow teachers and the Petworth community.

Principal of Roosevelt High School for the past 13 years, Miss Bradshaw will retire at the end of this school year.

A program in the gymnasium of the school Miss Bradshaw helped design presented as speakers representatives of the Home and School Association, Petworth and Arkansas Avenue Citizens Associations, Fort Stevens Post of the American Legion, the Public Library and the school's student council and alumni association.

Girl Cadets Drill

Miss Bradshaw entered the gymnasium on the arm of Cadet Maj. Richard Norton and marched between a row of cadets holding aloft their swords.

The crack platoon of Roosevelt High School's girl cadets demonstrated the close order drills that this year won the school both the platoon and competitive drills.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies Mrs. Alfred Diaz, president of the Home and School Association, pinned on Mrs. Bradshaw's rose-colored evening dress a gold diamond-studded brooch, a gift of the association. The retiring principal received also white leather luggage.

Declaring her days at Roosevelt "have been happy days for me," Miss Bradshaw said, "I may go somewhere else but I belong in Petworth."

Welcomed Into Retirement

Mrs. Mary Resh, principal of Burdick Vocational High School, recalled days she spent as one of Miss Bradshaw's students at old Business High. Allan Davis, who was principal of Business and Roosevelt before Miss Bradshaw succeeded him, welcomed her into retirement.

Most direct speech of all was delivered by Mrs. Esther Steinberg, former president of the Home and School Association.

Leaning over, she kissed Miss Bradshaw on the cheek and said:

18-Year-Old Held In $9 Robbery Of Ice Cream Store

He is Vance C. Nessly of 518 Missouri ave. nw., and is the son of William V. Nessly of the staff of The Washington Post.

The Nessly youth and a 15-year-old companion were arrested on a bus at Logan Circle Tuesday night when Carl C. Neuman, a Washington Terminal policeman, said he saw a .32-caliber revolver in Nessly's coat.

According to police, the 15-year-old juvenile, in the presence of his mother, admitted to police taking $9 from the till of a High's ice cream store, 1732 Trinidad ave. ne., on June 10. The revolver was allegedly carried by young Nessly.

The High's clerk, Helen Clarke, 638 South Carolina ave. se., was said to have identified Nessly in the United States attorney's office in Municipal Court. The case was continued until June 29 for hearing with bond set at $1500.

Failing to Guard Plane Costs U. S. $54,980 Damages

Negligence in "not properly guarding" an airplane stored at National Airport three years ago cost the United States Government $54,980.25 yesterday in Alexandria Federal Court.

On July 5, 1946, the testimony showed, John A. Vietor of Rochester, N. Y., stored his Beechcraft plane at the airport. Two days later, a 16-year-old youth, later identified as Paul Heim, came to get the plane, saying it belonged to his father.

It was brought out in testimony that Heim was allowed to take off after paying storage fees, but without being asked to produce identification. He got the plane about 10 feet off the ground when it crashed and was demolished.

The Insurance Company of North America paid Vietor, then sued the Government. Judge Albert V. Bryan awarded the judgment in the full amount asked.

1500 Attend Reburial Services For 250 War Dead in Arlington

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

(Picture on Page 1)

IT WAS HOT and still that quiet night off Guadalcanal's Lunga Beach. Of the few ships there, only a 14,250-ton cargo ship, the USS Serpens, was busy. For hours she had been taking depth charges aboard.

"The scuttlebutt was that she was taking all the ammunition off Guadalcanal," John P. Cosgrove, 30, of 5009 7th pl. nw., recalled yesterday. Cosgrove, then a yeoman first class, was on a ship 2000 yards away.

At 11:30 p. m., January 29, 1945, the Coast Guard-manned Serpens exploded with a blast heard and felt for miles. For short seconds, night was turned into day. Streaks of orange-light shot far into the sky, and shrapnel rained on Lunga Beach.

THEY READ the roll call of the dead yesterday at Arlington Cemetery, the names fading away into the sound of rustling trees standing above a gently sloping hillside. In their shade, placed in 52 flag-draped coffins awaiting reinterment, lay the mortal remains of those who died that night off Guadalcanal.

At each coffin stood four soldiers, sailors or Marines. Seated or standing in a huge semicircle about the burial plot—24 double graves, four single graves—were the next-of-kin of the deceased. Their number was estimated at about 1500 by a Coast Guard officer.

They sat or stood there, many moved to tears, all straining to catch each word, as services were held. Their eyes seldom left the long rows of caskets—dully-gleaming, sun-dappled receptacles with a tin tag at the head of each . . . "Unknown."

IN THIS largest group reinterment at Arlington since the war, services were held for Catholic, Protestant and Jewish dead. A Greek Orthodox clergyman and a Christian Scientist intoned burial rites for deceased of those faiths.

"Let our hearts, we pray thee, be deeply moved at this sight of death," said the Catholic chaplain. "Let us be mindful of our own frailty . . ."

The Protestant chaplain said: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills . . ."

THEN CAME the sounding of Taps. At stiff attention stood members of the Armed Forces. Openly weeping were many relatives of the 195 Coast Guard, 54 Army and one Public Health Service dead whose remains soon were to be consigned to the soil of their native land.

When the echo died away, a lone carnation was placed on each casket, and then the next-of-kin walked among them, fixing the scene in their memories.

Many carried in their arms the United States flags that had earlier been folded on each bier's top—one for each of the dead. The flags were presented the next-of-kin by the Coast Guardsman or soldier who was assigned to serve them.

Among those reburied were Machinist Mate First Class William Henry Harlow, son of William L. Harlow, 316 S Patrick st., Alexandria.

Club Hears Foreign Students

By Genevieve Reynolds

"I wish every young Czechoslovakian could see American democracy first hand. Then I am sure there would be no misunderstanding between the two countries," Prague-born Rudy Kroc told members of the Washington Soroptimist Club yesterday.

Kroc was one of 11 foreign students attending the Stuyvesant School in Warrenton who gave brief speeches at the club's luncheon held at the Willard Hotel.

Caesar Malnati of Ecuador, despite the fact that he could speak no English when he arrived at the school in September, 1948, made the honor roll the first month.

Differences between the South American and North American countries are not very great, he explained, pointing out that sports are similar . . . that both boys and girls participate.

Apilos Qusatanda of Siam goes in for baseball and basketball. He said that he likes the United States and expects to complete his education here.

Herman Vasquez of Columbia remarked that the girls in his country are as beautiful as here.

Tony Rovira of Bolivia, who was voted the most polite boy in his school, explained that his country is rich in developed resources.

Johnny Bult of Switzerland, who has been first in his class for three years at the school, pointed out that four different peoples with the same number of languages live in peace in his country.

Kazem Barakat of Cairo, Egypt, who arrived at the school three days ago, gave his first speech in this country. He cited the fact that Cairo has a population of two million and that the majority of the inhabitants speak both English and French.

George Cinta has been at the school since February 1949. Unable to speak any English, he learned the language by playing boogie woogie tunes for the boys. To prove his contention he whipped out the St. Louis Blues on the piano for the audience yesterday.

Marcel del Castillo of Venezuela said that he likes the United States very much, especially the girls.

Vira Osatanada of Siam, scholar and athlete, gave a brief history of his homeland, pointing out that the country has been modernized and industrialized.

Maryland's State Senator Roy Tasco Davis, who was guest of honor, made a brief address before dashing up to Capitol Hill, to urge the continuation of American schools in Latin America.

The former president of National Park College, now with the American Education Council, said that he is interested particularly in the Latin American schools.

Latin Americans are paying six million dollars toward the support of 270 schools in their respective countries, attended by 60,000 natives and many North Americans. Whereas the United States Government is paying much less toward the upkeep, according to Senator Davis.

MISS BETTY MAE HAMILTON

Misses Hamilton, Cunningham Bow

School's over and the spring debutante season is here! Yesterday's debutantes were Miss Betty Mae Hamilton and Miss Carroll Cunningham, the one making her bow at a dance, the other at a tea with dancing.

"Old Washington" attended the debut dance of Miss Betty Mae Hamilton at the Chevy Chase Club. The debutante is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hamilton, jr. She was graduated this month from the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Noroton, Conn., and in the fall will enter Rosemont College in Philadelphia.

At her dance Miss Hamilton was presented in an organdy gown of pale aqua, fashioned with off-shoulder neckline, tight bodice and full skirt. Her flowers were an old-fashioned bouquet of salmon pink roses with bouvardia. Mrs. Hamilton wore a gown of gray chiffon over chartreuse taffeta.

Dancing was on the terrace to the tempo of Sidney's orchestra. Small tables were centered with candles and white flowers.

Two house guests of the debutante attending the dance were Miss Joanne Larkin and Miss Jill O'Connor of Connecticut. Out-of-town guests included Gen. and Mrs. William F. Tompkins of Richmond, uncle and aunt of Miss Hamilton; Mrs. Henry Hamilton of Philadelphia, a cousin, and Mrs. Hamilton Benziger and Jack Benziger of Tuxedo Park, N. Y.

Before the dance, a dinner was given in honor of Miss Hamilton by Mr. and Mrs. Andrews Saul and their daughter, Miss Ruth Clarke Saul, at the 1925 F Street Club.

The debut tea of Miss Carol Joan Cunningham yesterday was a symphony in pink and white. Presented by her mother, Mrs. James J. Cunningham, the bud wore a gown of white faille, with flowing skirt caught at the side with pale pink roses. Pink roses were tucked in her hair, and oversize pockets on her dress were lined with pink satin.

The ballroom of the Shoreham, where the party was held, was decorated with pink roses. Assistants of the debutante carried pink and white flowers, and Miss Cunningham herself carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Sidney and his orchestra played for dancing, and cocktails and tea were served in the ballroom and on the terrace. Mrs. Cunningham, widow of Admiral Cunningham, USN, received with her daughter in a gown of pale beige lace over peach taffeta, pinned at the shoulder with brown orchids. Mrs. Frederick Dole of New York and Twin Lakes, New Canaan, Conn., godmother of the debutante, was also in the receiving line. She was gowned in aqua chiffon and wore purple orchids.

Assisting Mrs. Cunningham were Mrs. Calvin M. Bolster, Mrs. Emil H. Block and Mrs. Fred Barden. Miss Cunningham's assistants were Miss Eleanor Bishop, Miss Ann Cummins, Miss Joan Fechteler, Miss Evelyn Harmon, Miss Elizabeth Ann Kline and Miss Constance Hall Logan.

The men's committee was comprised of Stephen Burke, William Early, James McHugh, John McDonald, Jack Crowley and Paul English.

After her own coming-out party, Miss Cunningham attended the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. A. Saul and Miss Ruth Saul for Miss Betty Jean Hamilton before the latter's debut dance at the Chevy Chase Club.

Too Soon—Too Soon

Publicity-Wise Bartender Gets His Tributes Mixed: To Vishinsky, a Pick-Me-Up

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

IN THE MAIN, the Paris glitter set has ignored the Big Four talks. But one tiny item was magnified out of all proportion. A publicity-wise bartender created a special cocktail for Vishinsky, named it after his Soviet inspiration. The recipe, three parts vodka, one part tomato juice, proved singularly disappointing to those who frequent New York's St. Regis. There, in the King Cole Bar, the same concoction is called a "Bloody Mary" and is used specifically to ease the torture of a virulent hangover.

This season Paris went nuts about fancy dress parties. Encouraged by the leading couturiers, who cashed in plenty, within brief span those in the more agitated social swim went to a lace ball, a diadem ball, king's and queen's ball, a come-as-a-song ball. The diadem ball, given by two youngish gents of fashion, Paul Brine, formerly of the U. S. Foreign Service, and Portuguese M. Rosenstock, was a sensation. The ladies borrowed so many tons of diamonds and precious gems, that no less than two radio cars, six squads of gens d'armes and a battery of plainclothes dicks, were kept within call. The come-as-a-song clambake was hoisted by no less a person than piquantly dish-faced Mrs. Rosita Winston, who claims a dash or two of Cherokee Indian blood. The king's and queen's affair was given by the admirable, indefatiguable chasers of pleasure, Comte and Comtesse de Beaumont. Mrs. William Randolph Hearst gave quite the nicest party, taking over the whole Tour d'Argent for the festivities. M. de Cabrol, whose pleasant brother was former vice counsul in Boston, zipped up another outing with everyone coming as either animal, vegetable or mineral. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, as usual, gave the most perfectly appointed entertainment. They leased Paul Louis Weiller's house at 85 Rue de la Faisanderie and within three days managed, with the help of Jansen, the famous interior decorator, to transform it almost completely. On Friday night last week they gave a dinner to celebrate their twelfth wedding anniversary. There were about 70 at the dinner. His Royal Highness wore his Royal Stuart dress tartan, kilt, buckled shoes, magnificent sporran and obliged with a Highland fling. The Duke and Duchess did a waltz together and Mme. Martins, the former Brazilian Ambassadress in Washington, wheeled and undulated through a spirited samba.

Warren Delano Robbins did his own terpischorean specialty, a sort of Russian squat! The Duke's memoirs, incidentally, which are being written by Life magazine's Charles Murphy, will be finished by October. Another terrific, wonderfully beautiful party was given by the Baron Rede in his apartment in the old Hotel Lambert where Voltaire once lived with the Marquise de Lambert. The occasion was part of the centennial celebration of Chopin. Prince Georges Chavchavadze, a concert pianist and husband of the former Elizabeth Ridgway de Breteuil, played an all-Chopin program. All the ladies were in their most elegant ensembles be-jewelled to a fare-thee-well and looked better than possible under the soft lights from huge, candlelit, crystal chandeliers.

Miss Miller Becomes the Bride of C. C. Morgan

The marriage of Miss Barbara Neville Miller to Charles Carroll Morgan, jr., took place yesterday afternoon at the Georgetown Presbyterian Church with the Rev. John B. Kelly officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neville Miller of Washington. Mr. Morgan's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Morgan of Chevy Chevy.

Mr. Miller gave his daughter in marriage. With her faille taffeta gown, she wore an antique French veil and carried eucharist lilies and tuberoses. Miss Gale Miller was her sister's maid of honor. The bride's other sisters, Misses Mary and Katherine Miller; Miss Teckla Hilbert of Waterford, Va., and Miss Penelope Stout of Milwaukee, Wis., served as bridesmaids. The flower girl was Miss Nacy Mackall. LeRoy Tuttle Morgan was best man for his brother, and the ushers included John Kauffmann, Calvin Cobb, P. T. G. Beauregard, Pierre Gaillard, Samuel Sterrett and Hugh Morris. A reception followed the ceremony at the Miller home.

The newlyweds will make their home in Washington on return from their Bermuda honeymoon. Mrs. Morgan, a member of the Junior League, attended Sidwell Friends School and was graduated last year from Vassar College. The bridegroom served as a Navy ensign in the Atlantic and Caribbean during the war. He was graduated from Dartmouth College with the class of 1945 and also attended St. Alban's School and Deerfield Academy.

Let One Dish Do Double Duty

Kitchen time can be cut to a minimum by letting one dish play a double role. A fruit salad, for example, after the main course can act as dessert, too. For a complementary topping fold a couple of tablespoons of chunk-style peanut butter into one-half cup real mayonnaise. Or combine whipped cream and a little powdered sugar with real mayonnaise, if a sweeter dressing is desired.

Your Baby

Too Much Fat in Baby's Diet May Make Him Fat, Unhealthy

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

CHILDREN can grow fat on a diet composed largely of starches, but it is a poor diet nonetheless. The net result may be fat but not good bones and strong teeth.

Children overfed on starches tend to lose their appetites. It is well occasionally to turn a critical eye on the children's diets to determine whether they have become one-sided and unbalanced.

Mrs. Y. P. says her 14-month-old baby weighs nearly 30 pounds. "But he is so cross," she writes. "He falls a lot because he is so heavy and clumsy and he is always all skinned up on the forehead.

"He gets a big bowl of cooked cereal for breakfast and about 4 ounces of milk. Also, a piece of buttered toast with some jelly on it. He loves this.

"At noon he has an assortment of vegetables and he likes peas the best. Then a potato, or macaroni or rice and a custard and a couple of sweet crackers. Some milk, if he will drink it.

"At night he gets cereal again and sometimes a serving of fruit or gelatine. He usually drinks 6 ounces of milk before he goes to bed. He hasn't had cod liver oil since the ninth month as he was getting too fat."

My dear, my dear! This matter of vitamin D has no particular relation to the baby's fatness and he needs it. Vitamin D provides an element which helps the baby's body make the best use of its mineral food supplies and stores them in teeth and bones and nervous system.

Yours is a diet weighted too heavily with starches; the cereals, crackers, potatoes, macaroni, rice, vegetables, etc. The amount of milk is low and your baby gets no meat, no fish, no fowl, no cheese—and egg only in custard.

All children may eat one-sided diets for a time and then make up the deficiencies by going heavily for foods they have just spurned. But, if this is the usual way the baby is fed, it is high time you altered it

Use meat, eggs, cottage cheese, fish or fowl for one or two meals; fruit juices in the morning or mid-morning and fruit sauce at either noon or night. And vitamin D daily.

How Much to Expect A Day Worker to Do

I will soon hire a maid for one day a week at what seems to be the standard rate, $5.00. I do not know how much I should expect her to accomplish in a working day, and while I do not wish to require too much, neither do I wish to ask too little as I need help badly. I have a six-room, two-bath home and a year-old child. I should like to have my personal ironing (including child's clothes) done if possible, but is this too much in addition to general cleaning? If I leave my child in her care for an hour or two should she be expected to work while caring for him? What is usually done about her lunch? Am I supposed to provide and prepare hers?

R. S. N.

It isn't really possible to be too specific in discussing this problem because day workers vary so much in experience and ability. However, here are a few suggestions which might help you to arrive at a satisfactory answer to the problem.

Some energetic, efficient day workers will clean a six-room house and have time left for an hour or so of ironing in the eight hours. If you work at average speed, a good yardstick of what you can expect of your day worker is the amount of work you can do yourself in the same time under the same working conditions. If you wish her to do the ironing in addition to cleaning, you can not expect her to undertake too many extra cleaning jobs.

Cleaning the upstairs would consist of making beds, cleaning rugs, dusting floors and furniture and scrubbing bathrooms. Downstairs cleaning would include cleaning rugs, dusting furniture and floors plus washing and polishing kitchen floor. Dusting venetian blinds, going over upholstered furniture and drapes with dust attachment of vacuum sweeper, washing finger prints off of woodwork, etc., do not need to be done each week and can be rotated. If your cleaner is efficient, she should be able to work one of these jobs in addition to the weekly cleaning each week.

You will find that a great deal of your cleaner's time will be saved if you do not expect her to do dishes or pick up and put away misplaced articles (she doesn't know where they belong anyway). Assembling all the cleaning equipment where she can get it will get her to her work faster, too.

If your child is asleep, when left in her care, of course she should work. If the child plays happily in his play pen she could do a job in the same room with him, such as ironing. But, if the child is not happy in a play pen or your leaving upsets him so he requires extra attention it seems to me you could not expect the cleaning woman to do much while the baby is in her care.

The employer usually provides lunch. You do not need to prepare it, but should set out or indicate to her what you wish her to eat. Makings for hearty sandwiches, a hot or cold drink, cookies and fruit should serve nicely.

Will you advise me the appropriate wardrobe to wear to Scandinavia in the late summer? I am leaving by boat August 12th and will be gone until the last of September. Will fall clothes be required?

W. D. H.

Yes, the clothes you would wear in your area in the fall would be appropriate. Wool suits with a top coat would be practical. A top coat which is both warm and waterproof would save space. Nylon blouses to wear with the suits are practical for travel because they can be washed and worn without ironing and pack with few wrinkles. In addition to suits and blouses, you could include one or two rayon or cotton print dresses for daytime wear on the few warm days you may have. The dark print cottons which are crease resistant would be excellent. Prints are especially good for traveling because they do not show wrinkles as readily as the plain fabrics do.

Maryland Tobacco

The Department of Agriculture and the Maryland State Department of Markets said trading also proceeded at a steady pace when compared with yesterday's transactions.

There was a light rain at some of the eight markets, but the departments said the showers did not last long enough to produce any noticeable improvement in the quality of tobacco.

Tuesday's sales were reported as 201,178 pounds at an average price of $54.88 per 100. This brought the season net sales to 18,081,281 and the average price to 452.85.

Average auction bid prices per 100 pounds on some U. S. Grades included:

Miss Starr Creates A New Miss Moffat

EMLYN Williams' fine play, "The Corn Is Green," about an English school teacher and a young Welsh miner, is not receiving a meritorious production at the Olney Theater this week.

Even though it boasts the presence of Washington's own Frances Starr in the leading role of Miss Moffat, it is a disappointment.

Considering Miss Starr's reputed capabilities, in playing the central character of this drama she lacks the authority to fuse and mold the action of which she is the focus. She creates the impression that she is still working on the part; that she will be ready with it before long. This is regrettable since the play closes next Sunday evening.

In case your memory is weak, "Corn" was originally a smash vehicle for Ethel Barrymore on the New York stage. Warner Bros. bought it and Bette Davis gave a frenetic impersonation of the leading role. This reviewer saw both those performances and it is interesting to observe that the mannishness of Barrymore, and the frenzy of Davis are both missing from Frances Starr's interpretation of the character of Miss Moffat. Hers is more genteel, more feminine; it is warmer and more appealing; it is definitely an original creation, but not necessarily enough for Williams' school teacher.

Miss Moffat it a firm, determined, headstrong woman who sees in Morgan Evans, a young Welsh miner, a brilliantly original intellect. Defeated in her attempts to start a school, in a barn, for the young miners of Glansarne, she begins one in her own home. Evans, at first recalcitrant, subjects himself to her domination. His desertion of her, his siring of an illegitimate child by Bessie Watty, a slut, and his eventual success in winning an Oxford scholarship under Moffat's guidance constitute the remainder of the action in the play.

Solidly constructed, it is a well-written one. Emlyn Williams is a Welshman, he has a good ear for dialogue; he has a firm grasp of things theatrical. It is not his fault that the evening is an empty one.

Certainly neither the star nor the supporting cast, headed by Dean Harens, have been helped one bit by the inadequate direction of the piece. Harry Ellerbe, the director, has not given visual realization to the inherent fire in the piece. He has staged it with a pedestrian pace which makes the play, and the actors, often bog down in an inertia which conveys itself to the audience. Whenever the play comes to life it is because of the merit of the actors, not the director whose primary job it is to bring the script to vibrant life.

What animation there is in this production is given it by some of the supporting players. Dean Harens, as Morgan Evans, is consistently fine. There are several moments when he gives you an insight into what might have been an exciting evening in the theater. Mary MacArthur, as Bessie Watty, plays the Cockney tramp with a fine understanding of the inherent instability of an undeveloped adolescent mind in an over-developed body. Her mother, Helen Hayes, can be proud of Mary this week.

It is, however, Philippa Bevans as Mrs. Watty who does the most polished work of the group. She plays Mrs. Moffat's servant who has gotten religion. She milks a laugh out of nearly every line she utters. Her part is jerry-proof and Miss Bevans makes the most of it. She makes you aware of the inadequacies of some of her confreres.

Of others in the cast, Ralph Sumter as the Squire is noticeable in a bad imitation of Nigel Bruce, and youngster Barry Truex is delightful with his guttural Welsh dialect.

The setting by S. Syrjala is historically accurate for the time of the action: solid, unemotional, and cluttered as were all such homes in the late nineteenth century. As for the lighting, someone seemed to be experimenting with it during the second act on opening night; otherwise, it does the job: you can see the actors.

Next week another play by Emlyn Williams, "Night Must Fall," is on the bill. Starring Viola Roache and Leon Janney, it will open next Tuesday and run for a week. During the week of June 28, drama gives way to comedy and Broadway gives place to Hollywood. "John Loves Mary" will be presented and Guy Madison will be starred in his only personal appearance on the summer circuit this year. Tickets for both productions can be secured at the Washington boxoffice, located at Jordan's, 13th and G sts. nw. Phone number is Republic 1313.

Raft Film Well Directed

GEORGE RAFT is starred in the new Keith presentation, "Johnny Allegro." He is still the same stone-faced, dead-pan mug he has always been, but for once he has a good director. Ted Tetzlaff makes it easy to take this slightly different melodrama.

In this Columbia release, Raft has some good support from nearly everyone in the production, whether they're before or behind the camera. The story is, basically, old hat but it's been given a few new twists to make it palatable. The musical score is appropriately suspenseful and subdued; the photography is often good; the direction is firm, and the supporting cast is competent.

Raft plays a former con, former-GI who helps the Treasury Department crack a ring of counterfeiters who are trying to unload a half billion dollars in phony currency in an attempt to wreck the national economy so that an unnamed foreign power can move in during the chaos to follow. It's an interesting idea with veiled insinuations.

George Macready plays the esthetically inclined but ruthless ringleader of the counterfeiters. Nina Foch is his wife, helped by Raft to escape the police. Obvious romantic complications ensue and come to a climax when Macready discovers Raft is assisting the T-men. On an island off the coast of Florida, Macready, armed with a bow and arrow, stalks Raft for an exciting 10 minutes in the most tense moments of the film.

The most unusual aspect of the picture is the performance of Will Geer as the Treasury agent. Instead of the young, clean-cut college boy one usually meets in this kind of picture, Geer creates an original character; he's a garishly dressed, slow moving, slow-speaking rube who knows his way around. He's different; he's good.

Ted Tetzlaff, who directed that fine movie, "The Window," is the man most responsible for keeping the story unfolding at a smart clip.

Independents Name Cox in Arlington

Cox

Cox was overwhelmingly named by the qualified voters among the more than 350 political independents who packed the Thomas Jefferson Junior High School auditorium for the meeting.

The "Town Meeting" candidate, who is budget officer for the Federal Communications Commission and lives at 2518 S. 2nd st., Arlington, will face County Board Incumbent Basil M. DeLashmutt, a Democrat, in the general election next November.

The "Town Meeting" which named Cox was open to all qualified Arlington voters and indorsed by the Arlington Civic Federation, the County Council of P-T-A's, the Citizens' Committee for School Improvement, Home Protective Association, Better Government League and the local branch of the American Association of University Women.

Cox said, after his nomination, that the crowded auditorium last night was proof that "machine rule in Arlington is on the run."

Cox urged improved county budget procedure and a clearer budget explanation to the citizens, favored "no more taxes than are necessary," backed the school board's improvement program, and urged that county zoning encourage a community of "good middle-class homes."

To get the nomination he defeated "Town Meeting" candidates Miss Margaret E. Martin of 1118 N. Kenilworth st., an economist at the Bureau of the Budget, and H. Herbert Howe of 1313 N. Wayne st., a mathematician with the Coast and Geodetic Survey. Cox received 205 votes, Miss Martin 40, and Howe 27.

The chairman, Dr. Fritz Marx, told the group he hoped the "Town Meeting" could become an annual affair. Participants raised a purse of $94 last night to pave the way for a 1950 "Town Meeting."

Man Acquitted Of Terminal Police Assault

A District Court jury yesterday acquitted Coley B. Chapman, 26, of Jamaica, N. Y., of clubbing a Washington Terminal policeman with the officer's nightstick.

"Well, if Lilienthal knew that this fellow Hickenlooper was subversive, why did he hire him in the first place?"

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I am 11 years old and I would like very much to have a dog that doesn't grow big and is housebroken because you see I live in an apartment and my parents won't let me have a big dog because we don't have enough room.

I look in the paper every day in the Give-Aways, but every time I call, the dogs are all gone.

I would appreciate it very much if you could get me a dog.

Helen Hill,
2222 Shannon pl. se.

Dear Helen:

I realize that Give-Away puppies are snapped up early in the morning, and I wish I could help you. But I'm afraid that's impossible.

You see, I hardly have room to print all the things that people are willing to give away. And if I'd try to list all the things that people want, I'd be swamped.

Of course for little 11-year-old girls we try to make an exception sometimes. But that isn't so good, either. Because then people say: "You got a dog for her, why won't you do it for me?"

So I guess I won't be able to help you this time—unless by chance a nice puppy (who won't grow too big) happens to read this and discovers that your telephone number is Franklin 6850. Good luck. Bill.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Very playful black and gray kitten with white markings; 7 weeks old." (Wisconsin 3379.)

"Four gentle, playful housebroken kittens; full of fun." (Wisconsin 2105.)

"Mixed breed puppies, healthy and good looking." (Falls Church 3145.)

MISCELLANY

My indecision about where to go during my vacation brings a big package of Eastern Air Lines folders from Edwin H. Peterson —who is definitely not trying to be funny. He's assistant to the traffic and sales manager at Eastern . . . Milton Genderson of 3632 Everett st. nw. and Asher D. Kahn of 2222 I st. nw. lift inquiring eyebrows at our recent sports dispatch which stated that a Cleveland baseball player who had been struck by a batted ball "suffered confusion of the left side of the head" . . . Mrs. Thomas S. Lawson of 2845 Brentwood rd. ne. wants to remind you that the Sherwood Presbyterian Church Young People's A Cappella Choir will present a concert in the Church School Building this Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Admission is free, but a silver offering will be accepted . . . Mrs. Lillian Shenker, of 7300 Trescott ave., Takoma Park, Md., tells me that Wilner Post No. 381 of the Jewish War Veterans and the post's Ladies Auxiliary are going all out to put on a big show at the Forest Glen Hospital recreation room on the evening of June 23 . . . J. Warner Mills 3d, of 1606 Abingdon dr., Alexandria, Va., reports that our note here helped him locate a copy of that rare child's book he was after . . . And Carl H. Claudy, jr., editor of the telephone company's excellent magazine "The Transmitter," writes: "I guess I must be the same Carl Claudy that Mrs. Huff remembers from the old Washington College of Music at 17th and the Avenue. But the lady's memory plays her false if she accuses me of taking violin lessons there, since I taught (God help me) the saxophone. My sere and mellow years I devote to pathetic attempts to master the clarinet, but 'the ill woodwind that nobody blows good' is thus far the winner." The editor of "The Transmitter" is hereby forgiven for having taught the saxophone, because he is now doing such a fine job with the phone company's "house organ."

Parts Plant Strike Delays B-36

By Drew Pearson

B-36 SLOWDOWN—While Congress has been investigating possible finagling on B-36 contracts, the inside fact is that Consolidated Vultee has been forced to curtail production of the giant bomber—because of a prolonged strike in one key plant.

Pearson

The strike is at Bendix, South Bend, Ind., which supplies vital airplane parts throughout the industry. (The strike was reported yesterday either settled or on the verge of settlement.) Effect of the strike has been so severe that the Air Force is running short of spare parts for some of its most effective squadrons and may be forced to cut down on flying time.

Meanwhile, the FBI is checking reports that strike leaders are Communists, infiltrating into this key industry because of its power to paralyze the Air Force. Federal Mediator Arthur Viat fears a sympathy strike may now spread to the Studebaker plant. All the fault has not been on labor's side, however. Management has been bull-headed and strikers are sore at Bendix industrial relations manager, Millard Stone.

Economic Worries

UNEMPLOYMENT JITTERS—The President's Council of Economic Advisers last week sent him a confidential memo pointing to increasing unemployment at a time when it should be decreasing. . . . The council is also worried about wage negotiations of three million workers in the steel, coal, transportation, electric and auto industries in which the unions are demanding more wage increases while profits are dropping. . . . The Economic Council's chief battle is with Secretary of Treasury Snyder, who tells Truman that business will continue good, with nothing to worry about for the next 12 months. . . . Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing does not share this view. He called at the White House last week to urge an immediate Federal works program to calm unemployment jitters. . . . Despite the unemployment trend, only a meager public-works program is now before Congress—a bill to authorize 575 new public buildings.

Acheson to Try Again

BACKSTAGE WITH THE DIPLOMATS—Secretary Acheson has been trying to arrange another Foreign Ministers meeting for New York in September. Still not discouraged, he is willing to try another conference before giving up hope for some kind of deal with Russia on Germany. . . . Acheson has told Vishinsky he is willing to appoint Bob Murphy, American Ambassador to Germany, as his deputy to work with the Russians, British and French until the New York meeting rolls around. . . . Real fact is that President Truman was a bit worried in advance of the Paris Conference about the way Acheson would stand up under pressure from Vishinsky. Now he is satisfied Acheson is a tough negotiator, and even if the Paris Conference ends in failure, Truman thinks Acheson has done a wonderful job. He told him so in a telephone conversation last week.

Gains for Negroes

NEGRO IMPROVEMENTS—It's largely obscured by Senate filibusters, but white leaders in the South are taking more responsibility regarding Negro betterment. . . . Jackson, Miss., recently held a significant vote on waterworks improvements, additional fire equipment and a new Negro auditorium. All three were voted favorably, and the new Negro auditorium got almost as many votes as the additional fire equipment and improved waterworks . . . White citizens of Richmond, Va., some time ago took the lead in electing a Negro to the city council. It was white votes that put him there—not colored.

ANONYMOUS VIGILANTES—The FBI is investigating a mysterious outfit calling itself "The Vigilantes" which has been bombarding Congress with threatening letters demanding that all Masons and Jews resign. About 50 Congressmen have received letters . . . Authors of the letters have brazenly used the local telephone numbers of the Sons of the American Revolution, which caused the sons to tip off the FBI . . . G-Men advise Congressmen who receive such mail not to open the envelopes on the chance that the writer's identity can be established from fingerprints.

Merry-Go-Round

Dwight Palmer, under White House consideration as head of the National Security Resources Board, is an active battler against bigotry and discrimination. Head of the General Cable Corp., he practices what he preaches among the 500 employe of his firm . . . The Vinson committee to investigate the B-36 will subpena all records of the Navy League to find out where the money's coming from to battle the B-36 . . . Senator Johnson of Colorado is holding hearings on installing radio telephones in trains—an important safety measure . . . landlords by the hundreds of thousands are applying for rent increases under the new law guaranteeing them a fair return. Many are entitled to raise rents . . . Bill O'Dwyer will rejoin his old law firm, O'Dwyer & Bernstein, when he retires as Mayor of New York.

NEW U. S. CITIZENS—Attorney General Tom Clark has been waging a quiet, consistent campaign to make naturalization ceremonies more important. He feels that when a foreigner takes on the obligations of American citizenship, it should be accompanied by a ritual as impressive, though not so secretive, as an initiation into a high fraternal order . . . Clark has published an enlightening book, "Gateway to Citizenship," on the obligations of American citizenship. It's worth reading . . . A nine-judge panel in California does one of the best jobs of naturalizing citizens. In Washington, D. C., Judge Alexander Holtzoff rates high.

BEHIND THE IRON CURTAIN—The Red army high command has just completed a highly secret meeting with army chiefs of staff in the satellite countries. The army commanders from Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Roumania and Bulgaria all were present. Purpose of the conference was to map coordinated military strategy—just in case—United States diplomats report the Russians have discovered a tremendously important deposit of radium, and possibly uranium, just outside Archangel, Siberia. Hundreds of Russian engineers and geologists have been sent to open up active mining.

The Lyon's Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Bernard Baruch sat with some friends, including Daniel G. Arnstein, who discussed Baruch's imminent trip to Europe and the possibility of his visiting Moscow at Stalin's invitation. Arnstein then told of the period after he had opened the Burma Road, and received an invitation from Stalin to come to Russia and do advisory work on the Soviet transportation system. "I'd have taken the job," said Arnstein, "If I were a younger man" . . . "How old are you?" Baruch asked him . . . "Fifty-nine," said Arnstein . . . "Dan," said the 79-year-old Baruch, "you'll be quite a help to your family when you grow up."

Former Secretary of War Robert Patterson, who is being mentioned as a fusion candidate for the mayorality, says he's disqualified because he's not a resident of New York. His legal residence is in Groton . . . Joshua Logan's income from show business will remain the highest in the field. Logan, director and coauthor of "Mr. Roberts" and "South Pacific"—he's also coproducer of the musical—has an interest in the new show, "Miss Liberty" . . . Col. Frank Clark, who knows his way around so well that he guided Winston Churchill here, got lost inside the Stork Club while looking for a washroom. He walked through curtained doorways, into an elevator, down a stairway and then found himself on the street near 5th ave.
